BRITISH MINISTRY FACES TEST IN HOUSE

Sales Tax Is to Be Reduced, Federal Premier Intimates

Audience at Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, Learns Cut of At Least One Per Cent Is Coming in Budget To Be Laid Before Parliament at Next Session; Prime Minister's Speech Broadcast.

Prince Albert, Sask., Nov. 5.—Intimation of a further reduction of at least one per cent in the sales tax under the next federal budget featured a speech delivered by Premier King before a big audience here last night.

It was the third major address of the western tour of the Prime Minister, which will take him to Victoria, B.C., November 13.

The speech, broadcast by radio over the prairies, dealt also with immigration, the tariff and the record of the King Government, and the Premier also gave a sidelight on the appointment of Sir Henry Thornton as president of the Canadian National Railways.

RECOMMENDED BY THOMAS

The man who first of all conceived the idea of Sir Henry Thornton becoming president of the Canadian National Railways, Mr. King said, was Mr. H. J. H. Thomas, who is now a member of the MacDonald Government of Great Britain. Mr. Thomas and Mr. King had been friends for many years and knew of each other's interests in industrial affairs.

Mr. Thomas wrote Mr. King a letter from Britain strongly recommending Sir Henry Thornton, of whom he had seen a great deal because Mr. Thomas was then connected with a labor organization in Great Britain. Mr. Thomas wrote that he knew of no man as fair as between employees and management. If he were engaged Canada would get not only a man of wide experience and fair to his employees, but also a man with great ability to make the different groups co-operate.

WOMAN BEATEN AND ROBBED BY MEN IN NANAIMO

Mrs. Ethel Tantrum Severely Injured When Crossing Railway Tracks

(Special to The Times)

Nanaimo, Nov. 5.—Mrs. Ethel Tantrum, 58, was severely beaten and robbed last night by two unknown men when crossing the railway tracks near Chinatown. Mrs. Tantrum suffered severe injuries to her face and head, but her monetary loss was small. No arrests have been made by the Provincial Police, who are prosecuting a civil inquiry into the matter. This is the first robbery with violence reported in Nanaimo for several years, and the efforts of the local detachment to arrest the assailants are being supplemented by Staff Sergeant Robert Owens and Inspector T. W. Parsons, from Victoria.

Co-operative Settlement Plan Urged

Winnipeg, Nov. 5.—Large scale development of unoccupied areas in Canada through combined agricultural and industrial development was recommended by the executive board of the all-Canadian Congress of Labor in its report, submitted to the third annual convention here today. Such a plan, it was advocated, would absorb immigration to this country without detriment to the Dominion.

The "co-operative settlement" idea advanced by the Labor Congress executive was stated to be on a plan advanced by Right Hon. George Lansbury, M.P., First Commissioner of Works in the Labor Government of Great Britain. Attention was drawn to an interview with Mr. Lansbury published in a current edition of The Canadian Unionist, organ of the All-Canadian Congress of Labor.

DOG SAVES LIFE OF WOUNDED HUNTER IN ONTARIO FOREST

Nakina, Ont., Nov. 5.—A story has come out of the woods of this part of Ontario of a man's life being saved by the intelligence and faithfulness of his dog.

Andrew Syvitski, twenty-two, accidentally shot himself when he drew a revolver from his holster while hunting at an isolated camp at Pine Lake. Realizing his predicament and knowing he could not reach the nearest trapper's cabin himself, Syvitski scribbled a note and fastened it to his dog's collar and ordered the animal to go to the nearest camp, owned by Thomas Hughes.

The dog ran through three miles of forest and swam a river to reach the Hughes cabin.

Hughes, with the animal leading the way, reached Syvitski's camp and after rendering first aid, brought the man to his camp. A railway speeder brought the wounded man to Nakina and he was later rushed to Port Arthur by train.

SEEK REVISION ENTIRE SYSTEM SCHOOL TAXES

Officials of Union of B.C. Municipalities Interview Education Minister

Want to Embrace Those With Children at School Now Free of Levy

Plans for revising the entire system of school taxation now in effect in British Columbia, so as to offer a strong measure of relief to landowners, were discussed at a meeting here today between officials of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, representatives of the B.C. School Trustees Association and Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe, Minister of Education.

Municipal leaders all over British Columbia are combining now in a demand that landowners must be relieved of part of the expense of education at the next session of the Legislature, those present at today's conference explained. Some system of taxation, they said, must be devised to include a large class of citizens who at present pay nothing directly towards the cost of education, though their children use the schools.

NEW TAX SUGGESTED

A new income tax, along lines which have often been discussed before, was considered as a solution to this problem, and its possibilities will be further investigated by municipal leaders in the next few weeks. They will return to lay before the Minister of Education concrete plans which could be incorporated in legislation at the next session of the House, if the Government approved them.

SURVEY REPORT NOT FAVORABLE

The suggested income tax, which is said to appeal strongly to the Government, would be virtually universal in its scope and would not be limited to the now taxable income of Vancouver. The municipal delegation, headed by E. H. Bridgman, president of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, included Reeve Thomas Reid of Surrey, City Councillor James Macdonald of Vancouver, Councillor Lambert of Burnaby, Clerk Blandy of Oak Bay, George Grant, secretary of the B.C. School Teachers' Association, Trustee F. J. of Victoria and Trustee Car of Chilliwack.

OLD LETTER IS KEPT AS RELIC

Vancouver, Nov. 5.—A letter written by himself in 1886 came back into the possession of W. R. Lord, president of the North-Packaging Company Limited, today under curious circumstances. A personal friend assisting in the clearing out of old vaults and files in the courthouse in Victoria came across the document and mailed it to Mr. Lord as a curiosity.

"I thought the date must be wrong when I first saw it," said Mr. Lord, "but here you can see as clear as day it was made the impression of the circular post office stamp, August 14, 1886."

CONFERENCE PLAN RELIEVES INDIA TENSION

Favorable Response to the Viceroy's Dominion Status Declaration Grows Wider

New Delhi, India, Nov. 5.—Comment on the Viceroy's declaration of November 1, affirming the British Government desire to grant dominion status to India in time, indicates the favorable response is wider than had been expected. Lord Irwin declared a conference should be held in London to discuss the matter.

The declaration delivered a severe blow to the growing movement for complete independence. One section of the Indian press characterizes the day of the declaration as a red letter day in Indian history.

Month May Pass Before McAlpine Explorers Come From the Arctic Region

Winnipeg, Nov. 5.—It will be two weeks or a month before the McAlpine party can be brought to civilization from its northern retreat at Cambridge Bay, 1,500 miles north of Winnipeg. This was the opinion expressed here today by executive members of the Dominion Explorers Ltd., who directed search operations from Winnipeg for many weeks.

GOVERNOR SENDS CONGRATULATIONS TO McALPINE MEN

Conveying heartfelt congratulations on their safety, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor today forwarded the following telegram to the members of the McAlpine party discovered yesterday in the northern barren lands after being lost eight weeks:

"Colonel C. D. H. McAlpine, O.B.E., c/o C. F. Edwards, Radio Station, Ottawa, Canada.

"The veterans and the people of British Columbia are thrilled to learn of the safety of yourself and your party. They desire to record their admiration of the tireless efforts of the gallant aviators who have risked their lives and limbs in an undaunted effort on your behalf and also of the noble efforts of the Hudson's Bay Company. We reverently thank divine providence for your safety.

"(Sgd.) R. RANDOLPH BRUCE, Lieutenant-Governor."

Drug Clerks Will Appeal Wage Ruling

Argument to Be Entered at Victoria Sitting of Appeal Court in January

The Associated Drug Clerks of B.C. will carry their case for inclusion under the Male Minimum Wage Act to the Court of Appeal, it was stated today by H. W. Davey, counsel for the clerks.

The appeal will be lodged before the Court of Appeal to convene here in January next, and will be by way of an appeal from a refusal of the application of Harold Davenport, a Victoria licentiate, for a writ of mandamus compelling the Male Minimum Wage Board to entertain an investigation of the calling.

The application was denied after argument before Mr. Justice Murphy in Supreme Court Chambers here recently, when H. W. Davey appeared for the drug clerks, Lindley Crease, K.C., for pharmacist employers and W. H. M. Haldane for the Male Minimum Wage Board.

In his ruling Mr. Justice Murphy held that pharmacy was a profession, and that as such was not intended to come within the scope of the Male Minimum Wage Act. It is from this ruling that the appeal will be taken.

LIVELY DEBATE AFTER SPEECH BY MACDONALD

Premier Tells British Commons About His Negotiations at Washington

States Naval Reduction Is Goal, But Debts Were Not Discussed

London, Nov. 5.—Reporting on his mission to Washington to discuss naval limitation, Premier Ramsay MacDonald today told the House of Commons the success of the London five-power conference in January was the next objective of Great Britain and the United States.

He declared that "desire to make it clear to everyone that in our mutual relations the Paris pact of peace is a reality" was the supreme fact in the Anglo-American naval negotiations.

FILL IN GAPS

In preparing for the conference he had studied with President Hoover ways of filling in "the narrow gap still remaining in a programme of building which would at the same time recognize both parity in strength and variety in the use of tonnage."

He called attention to the fact that Washington was pursuing its historic policy of keeping free from Old World entanglements, but London must remain loyal to the obligations contracted with the League of Nations.

Former Premier Lloyd George, Liberal leader, created a storm in the House when, after having congratulated Mr. MacDonald on the success of his mission, he pressed him for answers whether he had entered into any commitments on beligerent rights and general disarmament.

WALL STREET RUM PARTY IS SENATE TOPIC

Brookhart of Iowa Tells U.S. Second Chamber How Freely Liquor Flowed

Washington, Nov. 5.—The story of the "Wall Street Boozing Party Dinner" in Washington was told to an expectant and closely attentive Senate today by Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart, of Iowa, who said he had sat between Otto Kahn and E. E. Loomis of the Morgan Company.

After throwing his invitation to the dinner, received from Walter F. Fahy, Wall Street broker, into the wastebasket, Brookhart said, he was urged to go to the dinner by "our distinguished president pro-tem."

He referred to Senator Moses, New Hampshire, who was presiding.

AN OLD FRIEND

"I said, 'Who is Fahy?' Brookhart told the Senate in relating his conversation with Moses. "He said he was an old friend of Morris and La Follette," continued the Iowa. "And that's true, I guess. So I said I would go."

In the reception room at the dinner, Brookhart said, there was a rack and when some one pulled a curtain there was revealed a row of silver hip flasks.

"I was told to 'help myself.' A considerable number there did help themselves," he said, "but I want it distinctly understood that Senator Smoot, who was there, did not help himself and was as much disgusted as I was and as much against it."

SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES

"Senator Gooding did not take a flask and I did not. As to the other flasks, they can say for themselves whether they helped themselves. Then we went into the dinner."

British Commons Declaration On Soviet Is Asked

First Big Test of Present Session of Parliament Brought On by Motion of Censure on Resumption of Relations Offered by Ex-Premier Baldwin; Lloyd George's Support of Labor Government Means It Will Win.

London, Nov. 5.—Ex-Premier Baldwin, Conservative leader, moved an amendment in the Commons to-night deploring the "failure" of the Government to maintain the conditions which the Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary had laid down for the resumption of diplomatic relations with Russia.

London, Nov. 5.—Former Premier Stanley Baldwin to-night opened an attack in the House of Commons on the recent agreement with Russia, looking toward resumption of relations. He declared that Mr. Arthur Henderson, Foreign Secretary, had made a most humiliating surrender.

Mr. Henderson in reply stated the Government did not intend to recommend Parliament pledge the credit of British taxpayers to any loan raised by the Soviet Government, and also that Soviet propaganda would not be tolerated in any form at any time.

SLIGHT GAIN IN CONDITION OF MR. ROBB

Toronto, Nov. 5.—The condition of Hon. James A. Robb, Minister of Finance of Canada, was reported early this afternoon as showing little change, but the attending physicians said there was, if anything, some slight improvement. The Minister's temperature being slightly down.

Mr. Robb developed pneumonia ten days ago. He is at the Royal York Hotel.

NANAIMO YOUTH SHOT IN FACE WHEN HUNTING

Charles Hamilton Escapes Death When Bullet Ploughs Jaw

Special to The Times

Nanaimo, November 5.—Charles Hamilton was shot in the face yesterday when a small bore rifle was accidentally discharged by a member of a hunting party.

At the Nanaimo Hospital the bullet was removed from its lodgment behind the jawbone and the deep wound inflicted was stitched up. Mr. Hamilton is reported to be doing well.

The accident occurred when a party of three youthful sportsmen were in a post. Game appearing, one of the party became excited, swung his .32 calibre rifle around for a shot and the weapon unexpectedly discharged. Mr. Hamilton escaped death by a fraction of an inch.

U.S. Stocks Dull In London To-day

London, Nov. 5.—The holiday on the New York Stock Exchange was responsible for a dull tone in the Anglo-American group of industrials on the London Stock Exchange to-day.

Only small movements occurred, most of them being to lower levels. The tendency in other sections was subdued, gold-related items being adversely affected by the new conversion loan and sympathetically affecting speculative issues.

Voluntary Donations Aid Blind Objective

Rain Fails to Dampen Enthusiasm of Canvassers Out to Raise $50,000 to Help Sightless Become Self-supporting Citizens and to Alleviate Lonesomeness of Tragic Disability.

Voluntary donations to the $50,000 drive as Victoria's quota of the $150,000 sought by the National Institute for the Blind for work in British Columbia featured the campaign yesterday. The drive is being aided by the help of bringing the total to around $7,000 before noon.

EARLY MORNING SURPRISE

Rain brought discomfort to the work of the canvassers but failed to dampen their enthusiasm. Fred Landberg, chairman of the canvassers, was delighted with a bright start to the day's work. Before breakfast this morning he received a telephone request to call at David Spencer Limited. He was handed a self-explanatory letter and a cheque for $250. The letter read: "The employees of David Spencer Limited herewith enclose a cheque for $250 as their subscription to your fund for so worthy a cause."

Canvassers have met with surprises, pleasant and otherwise. In some cases where they reasonably anticipated a good donation they have met with rebuffs. In other cases where their anticipations were not so high, they have been pleasantly surprised both by the

AT THE THEATRES

DOROTHY MACKAILL
IN FLAPPER ROLE
AT THE CAPITOL
Dorothy Mackaill plays the role of a sophisticated, grown-up flapper in "The Great Divide," her new first National-Vitaphone picture now showing at the Capitol Theatre all this week. The part gives the beautiful actress an opportunity to portray the same kind of character in which she gained success in "The Barker" and "Hard to Get." She attempts to typify the modern girl, with few thrills left to experience, but who is still able to fall head over heels in love with the right man. "The Great Divide" has an Arizona locale. It is an adaptation of William Vaughn Moody's famous stage success. Reginald Barker directed the all-dialogue production, which features five new songs.

HOLMES HERBERT
IN MYSTERY FILM
AT PLAYHOUSE
Holmes Herbert is called upon to give three distinct characterizations in "The Charlatan," the Universal picture now the current attraction at the Playhouse Theatre here. He portrays a Hindu crystal gazer, a circus performer and a district attorney. This thrilling mystery of a fake fortune-teller was directed by George Melford, under the supervision of Carl Laemmle Jr. It is an adaptation of the same name by Ernest Pascal and Leonard Franks. Robert N. Lee wrote the adaptation and J. G. Hawks the continuity.

LEITCH PLAYERS IN CLEVER COMEDY ON STAGE AT COLISEUM
"Why Girls Walk Home" was explained in detail to the audience at the Coliseum Theatre last evening, where the Coliseum stock players, under the direction of "Toby" Leitch, are presenting a clever farce comedy of this title. The show will be presented every evening this week with matinee on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons. As the title of this play suggests, there is plenty of clever humor in the production, and judging by the hearty laughs which the first night audience last night gave way to the play is an outstanding success in every way.

DOUBLE MURDER
PROVIDES THRILLS
IN "CRAIG'S WIFE"
A mysterious double murder affords some thrilling moments in "Craig's Wife," a new Pathé picture which is being shown at the Columbia Theatre. This is particularly true when the net of circumstantial evidence tightens around an innocent man through his wife's persistent attempts to manage his affairs. Irene Rich plays the title role in "Craig's Wife," with Warner Baxter as her husband, Virginia Bradford, Carroll Nye, Lillian Tashman, Jane Keckley, Ethel Wales, George Irving, Mabel V. Buren and Raids Rae are others in important roles.

CO-OPTIMISTS TO OPEN TO-NIGHT

"The Angel in the House" to Be Presented at Crystal Garden
To-night the Co-optimist Comedy Company, under the direction of A. Lee, will present "The Angel in the House," their first play of the season. For three years this talented company has provided, during the winter season, a weekly half hour of stage comedy which has been tremendously enjoyed. To-night's comedy will be packed full of refreshing wit and humor. Theatre-goers of some years ago will remember it as one of the cleverest of the late H. B. Irvine's successes at the Savoy Theatre, London. It is a play remarkably well suited for production at the Crystal Garden little theatre, and is warranted to send its audience away with something to chuckle over. There will be dancing as usual after the show without extra charge.

Civil Servants
S. A. Shrimpton was last night elected president of the Victoria branch of the Amalgamated Dominion Civil Servants' Association at the annual meeting held in the clubrooms of the Provincial Civil Servants' Association on Menzies Street. Other officers elected were: Vice-president, S. J. Chivers; auditor, Walter Lorimer; secretary-treasurer, Aubrey H. C. Jones. Votes of thanks were tendered George Finn and other retiring officers. The association will initiate inquiries into the reasons why linemen employed by the Dominion Government telegraphers are excluded from the scope of the Civil Service Commission, which has jurisdiction over telegraph operators. The meeting also discussed the status of Public Works Department employees of long service, who are still graded as temporary employees and thereby denied annual increases or superannuation. An inquiry will be initiated into the exclusion of Capt. E. L. James of the Sandheads lightship from salary increases and superannuation privileges. The meeting was informed that this ruling is based on the fact that Capt. James is commander of one of His Majesty's Canadian vessels. It was also stated that the employees at the quarantine station are organizing a group of twenty-five members, the meeting accepted applications from twelve other new members.

We're On Our Way" Wires
Santa Claus Expedition
Leader to Victoria Times
Ottawa Flying Field.
"Well, we're on our way!" With that as his parting message to boys and girls of this community, Captain F. E. Klein Schmidt, famous Arctic explorer, who is heading an expedition to the home of Santa Claus for The Victoria Times, climbed into his big aeroplane and took off for the North Pole, according to telegrams received today giving further information of the hop-off for the Frozen Regions. And here's a surprise—Mrs. Klein Schmidt went with him! It was almost at the last moment before the start that she appeared dressed in flying clothes. "Frank," she said to the Captain, "I am going with you." "Why, my dear," the intrepid explorer objected, "that is out of the question. You are not prepared for the journey and you have no idea how treacherous and difficult the trip will be. I never heard of such a thing." "That's all right," his wife said, smiling, "I am prepared for the trip and I intend to make it. You see when you first completed arrangements with The Times for this expedition, I began getting my heavy clothing together. As you can see, I have the proper clothes for flying and when we get into the Far North I will have plenty of warm things for that, too. Why, Frank, I've just got to go. You don't think I would miss seeing Santa, do you? And besides, who will cook your meat and darn your socks if I don't go? Remember the success of your last expedition was greatly due to me. You said you would not have been able to take motion pictures of the home life of Eskimos and photograph the Eskimo women if I had not been along." So the Captain had to give his consent. The big aeroplane, which had been carefully prepared for the long flight, was rolled out onto the field and loaded with gasoline and oil. The bags of mail containing letters which children in this community have written to Santa Claus for delivery by the Captain were stowed away in the body of the plane. Then the motor was started and warmed up. The same with "Red Garland's Belanca" monoplane.

AN IDEAL START
"This is an ideal day for the start," the Captain said as he went over the controls, gave the wireless equipment a final inspection and pronounced everything in order. We will make the very best time possible to the Northern tip of Hudson Bay. From there we will fly as far into the Arctic wastes as we can with safety. If we find it impossible to reach Santa's home in the aeroplane we will proceed by dog teams and reindeer.

Those Bilious Attacks

usually begin with a heavy, tired feeling. Then comes the dull headache. Then the stomach feels qualms. Then comes nausea and general misery for a day or two. You know what causes biliousness? Lazy liver, every time! It is the liver's work to remove certain waste products from the blood, and also to store up bile which moves the bowels. When the liver is lazy, poisons remain in the blood; the bowels do not move regularly; the stomach gets upset; and you have bilious attacks, unless—you take ABBEY'S. For ABBEY'S tones up and invigorates the liver as it sweetens the stomach—regulates the bowels as it neutralizes uric acid—and acts as an internal bath on the whole digestive tract.

A CALLOUS ACTION

To the Editor:—On Monday morning my daughter was taking the Oak Bay car to town a few minutes before nine in the morning. Her sister, with "Patrick of the Mill" (a valuable Irish terrier, imported about three years ago) was seeing her off at the corner of Bank Street. The dog ran across the road towards another dog.

A man driving a large car in the same direction, apparently too impatient to wait until the passengers had boarded the street car, dashed behind the waiting car to the far side of Oak Bay Avenue, running over the dog and killing it.

Onlookers say that the wheels of the motor were considerably lifted as they went over the dog's body but the callous driver continued on his way without even stopping to see what mischief he had done. Another motorist, following behind, picked up the little body and carried it to my home, my younger daughter having rushed away in bitter distress. I would like to thank this unknown friend who so kindly picked up this little dog which part from his commercial value, was deeply loved by us.

At the same time, in common with many others who suffer from the cruel selfishness of motorists, I must express my severest condemnation of the person who killed our dog without even stopping to see what the result of his ruthlessness might be, or helping to carry away its body. This, as far as he was concerned, was to be undertaken by his young mistress.

Motoring seems to have produced a goodly amount of selfishness in this present day. Our lives and the lives of children and animals are not safe, although they surely deserve as much, or more, consideration than the business or pleasure engagements of the motorists.

Only the other day I had to pull a child of about four years of age out of the way of a car passing near the Willows school, by seizing it by its cap. The driver passed on and paid no attention to the fact that he had nearly killed this child, and in spite of regulations that compel motorists to slow down when nearing a school.

For the safety of the public it is imperative that stringent action be taken to curb the activities of these selfish and indifferent individuals who disturb our peace and happiness by their thoughtless ways.

SEES ISLAND AS COMING FUR CENTRE

Fox fur men from the whole southern part of the Island gathered at the Gilt Edge Fox Farms yesterday afternoon, where George Mayer of the Frederick Fur Sales Company of London and New York, gave demonstrations for the breeders.

"There is no reason why Vancouver Island should not be one of the great fur centres of the North American continent in the near future," Mr. Mayer said. "I am fully convinced that fur of extra shine and texture can be raised here, judging by the numerous animals I have inspected."

"Color in foxes should be the first consideration of the breeder. A great many breeders have the idea that they must get medium pelts. This is the just what the market requires. Whether three-quarters or medium, they must have the blue characteristic to bring the best prices, the stronger the blue the better. Too light under-coloring is a disadvantage in the hide, but does not matter so much in the brush. The skins must be bluish-black, with no brown in the black foxes, while a cross fox without silver is not desirable."

"Fashions change and furs change with the seasons, but whatever changes take place, it is a certainty that what has been in favor once will surely come back again. The fur business is an industry to-day and not a luxury any more. Wild fur is becoming extremely scarce and the fur dealers are paying better prices for raised pelts than they were paying for the wild, one of the reasons being that the pelt of a domesticated fox could always be taken when prime."

Mr. Mayer told the breeders of the importance of sanitary conditions around a farm in order to get good pelts and congratulated the Island breeders on the good condition of their farms. He announced the appointment of D. McDonald of the Gilt Edge Company, as representative here of his company, and recalled that Mr. McDonald had been shipping furs to Huth fifteen years ago.

Among the other fur leaders of the west who attended were: D. W. Trotter, owner of the famous purple line furs of Alberta; Capt. J. Mackenzie of Maple Bay; Mrs. Butler of Sooke; Major Ash of Albert Head and J. C. Crothers of Vancouver.

GEORGE BACK FROM NORTHERN EXPLORATIONS

Noted Mining Man Made Perilous Dash By Air Over Frozen Wastes

Mr. and Mrs. George, known to the mining world as the "Alaskan" couple, as a result of Mr. George's discovery of the George Copper mine, have arrived in Victoria and are preparing to spend the winter here.

Since the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company has taken over complete control of the George Copper mine, Mr. George has been turning his attention to the field that he made his sensational dash last February by aeroplane over the frozen north from Wrangell to Telegraph Creek and then across the Klappan Mountains into the virgin Finlay River section. The news of this dash thrilled newspaper readers of Canada early in the year, when the messages finally came from Telegraph Creek that he had been successful and had got through. Accompanying Mr. George as his surveyor was F. M. Monkton, of Victoria. The object of the trip on which they risked their lives, with temperatures down to far below zero, was to explore and acquire some vast new mineral deposits in the area.

Mr. George to-day said that after they left Telegraph Creek for the Finlay and during the whole spring and early summer they were in the area, they met only three white men. They met a few nomadic Indians, who travel in small parties and fish and hunt. He said the country in the interior was good for livestock, as there is bunch grass for feed and on their pack horses flourished.

Since the middle of summer, Mr. George has been at his northern home at Stewart, B.C. He said that development up the Bear River is proceeding at a rapid pace and that as soon as the railway is put through, production of territory extending on both sides of the Bear River for several miles and embracing a number of properties, will start and the country will work up to an enormous volume in the next few years.

Because of his position, he said that he could not mention any specific properties, but he said that the large scale copper operations on the continent are being planned there.

Mr. and Mrs. George are at the Dominion Hotel, where they are meeting old friends and being sought in conference by persons interested in northern developments.

"TALAGOG" IS REPRODUCED ON RECORDS

C. Boulter of Columbia Co. Takes First Phonograph Records in Philippines

Production of phonograph records in the Philippine Islands, reproducing "Talagog," the Philippine language, native singing and orchestra, has just been achieved by Charles C. Boulter, engineer for the Columbia Phonograph Company, who returned from Manila yesterday by the liner President Lincoln.

This is the first attempt to manufacture phonograph records in the Philippines, Mr. Boulter said. As the result of his experiments there will be many interesting and artistic interpretations of Filipino music, vocal and instrumental, available to the musical world. Mr. Boulter recorded in Manila interpretations of universal music, the classics and, of course, Filipino jazz.

One of the outstanding recordings was recorded by the famous Filipino constabulary band, composed of eighty trained native musicians. Toy Toy, noted Filipino female singing artist; Compo and Del Rama, star soprano of Manila, also gave recordings for the Columbia engineer.

Activities will continue indefinitely until the repertoire of Philippine productions is complete.

Naturally, the variety of records will number several hundreds, many of which may come to be in demand throughout the world.

Mr. Boulter, who came from Victoria by the liner Empress of Russia on July 25 last and has been in Manila since August 15.

He took along with him "tons" of wax in order to record voices and musical numbers. He estimates that he carried across the Pacific over one hundred cases, each case containing approximately 150 pounds of wax.

The records taken by Mr. Boulter, known to the trade as "masters," will all probably be "pressed" at the Columbia plant at Oakland, Cal.

The electrical equipment taken to Manila, Mr. Boulter says, was valued at $50,000.

He believed that the people of the Philippines are interested in their own culture and will be glad of this opportunity to know through the phonograph record their artists and musicians.

wise, but also resented the opposition voiced in the British party press.

The Statesman, of Calcutta, declared any repudiation of the goal of dominion status would mean the establishment of a charge of breach of faith against Britain.

Most of the Indian newspapers, while awaiting the final verdict of Indian politicians, welcome the announcement as a wise step toward finding the way out of the political impasse.

FEATURES HAVE WIDE APPEAL

W. L. Wardell Tells How New York Tabloid Doubled Circulation Overnight

There is a definite and proven circulation in newspaper features and comic strips, W. L. Wardell, of the McNaught Syndicate, trenchantly argues. Good features can always be relied upon to build up circulation, and as for the comic strips, why everybody reads them. They appeal not only to the youngsters, but also to the grown-ups.

"I am numbered among the comic strip adherents; I follow them every day," he said.

In backing up his statement on features as circulation getters, Mr. Wardell recalled the time when The Graphic, New York daily tabloid, by publishing the "Peaches Browning" features, increased its circulation from 220,000 to 530,000 in one day.

EDITS SIAMANESE PAPER

Don. Garden, the New York newspaperman who wrote the "Peaches Browning" feature series for Mr. Wardell, and made his reputation as a writer and circulation getter, is now editing a daily newspaper for the King of Siam at Bangkok.

Among the features syndicated today by the McNaught organization are Will Rogers, O. O. McIntyre, Rube Goldberg and the J. J. McAvoy comics.

SEEKS TEE BUTTON

Mr. Wardell came over from Seattle last night by the Ironclads in the course of his annual transcontinental tour. He is a keen fisherman and his great ambition is to land a fifty-pounder salmon at Campbell River, thereby qualifying for the Tee Club button.

"I am coming back next August and I am going to get one of those Campbell River fellows," he said.

Mr. Wardell is at the Empress Hotel to-day and will leave by the night boat for Vancouver.

GREAT GROWTH IN RADIO SEEN

Federal Licenses Show Popularity of Broadcast Receivers

"Issuance of radio receiving licenses during the current year in Canada indicate a very large increase in the radio broadcast audience," declared E. J. Haughton, Superintendent of Dominion Radio Telegraphs this morning when releasing figures showing the progress of the five months terminating on August 31.

In Greater Victoria there were issued, in five months, nearly as many radio licenses as were issued during the whole of the year 1928-29. The official year opens on April 1, and on August 31 3,937 receivers had been licensed in Greater Victoria, compared with 4,378 licenses taken out in the whole of the preceding twelve months. The British Columbia total of 19,614 licenses compares with 23,407 in the present year.

In Canada the same percentage of increase has been noted, the total reported for the five months being 223,597 licenses, as compared with 206,926 licenses in the year which closed on March 31 last.

"Nearly all the licenses issued in Victoria since April 1 were applied for in the first two months of our fiscal year. Until recently applications have been few, but in October there has been a great increase. There is no doubt but that the year will show a great and important increase in the use of radio receivers in Canada," said Mr. Haughton.

Mr. Lloyd George also wished to know whether war debts had been discussed during the negotiations.

The Labor benches shouted their disapproval as the Liberal leader demanded answers.

Commander J. M. Kenworthy of the Labor benches insisted that Mr. Lloyd George's queries were only mischievous. Kenworthy was formerly a Liberal.

JACK JONES SPEAKS

The irrepressible Jack Jones, Labor M.P. for Silverton, lessened some of the tension with a humorous speech, but Mr. MacDonald insisted on coming back at Mr. Lloyd George.

The Prime Minister declared emphatically that "the question of debts was not discussed." He assured the House here had been no commitments on the other questions.

OLD ISSUES

"In the course of conversation," the Premier said, "President Hoover raised some of the major historical issues and differences between us, such as the right of the so-called fortified bases and so on which were still active in forming public opinion, and we agreed mutually to examine them in the hope we might arrive at an understanding upon them."

In opening his statement to the House on his Washington visit Mr. MacDonald remarked he would have little to add to what had been printed in the press.

His discussions with Premier King of Canada had been only provisional. Although he had to raise some questions that might easily have been presented to the House in such a way as to re-awaken old prejudices, from beginning to end he had found nothing but thoughtful fairness and a desire to co-operate and to place facts and issues justly before the country, he said.

"No Ambassador could have received a warmer welcome," he said. "No government or people could have opened their doors, their minds and their hearts more to a guest."

WINTER TIME IS GOODRICH TIME

Once a year is often enough for the head of the family to have to think about winter footwear. You will find if you make one job of it... outfit the family at "one fell swoop" you'll save a lot of time and trouble later on, not to mention the factor of insurance to your family against illness caused by wet or cold feet.

—And this will be particularly true if you make your purchases at the store which handles the Goodrich line.

There was a time when overshoes and rubbers were so awkward in appearance and indefinite in quality that most people considered them a necessary evil.

But ever since Goodrich brought out the Zipper overshoe there has been a steady improvement in style and quality.

Today you can get a pair of Goodrich rubbers or overshoes... from graceful Goodrich Zippers to heavy top boots... that you may well be proud to wear. And when they bear the name Goodrich you can be assured of not only graceful design but also, perfect protection from all moisture, cozy warm feet and wearing quality that will surprise you.

A WORTHY CAUSE

THOSE WHO ARE NOT CONDEMNED
To a life-long world of darkness find it difficult to understand what it really means to be without sight. Blindness levels rich and poor. There is no private institution in which the sightless may be trained to be less dependent upon others. Money cannot purchase such exclusive privileges. This is the reason why the British Columbia branch of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind has launched a campaign to collect $150,000 for the expansion of the work already being carried on in this province. The amount Victoria is expected to raise is $50,000—and we have no doubt this sum will be willingly contributed. It is a worthy cause.

SECOND TO WHEAT

ONLY IN RECENT YEARS HAS THE Dominion Bureau of Statistics taken official interest in Canada's tourist trade as a factor in the economic life of the country. There is nothing surprising about this. It is only since the war that really organized efforts have been made to capitalize the Dominion's manifold holiday attractions. How they have paid is reflected in comparative returns from 1920 to 1928. These are as follows:

1920	$ 83,734,000
1921	86,394,000
1922	91,686,000
1923	130,977,000
1924	143,942,000
1925	173,289,000
1926	190,463,000
1927	243,754,000
1928	265,500,000

The figure for 1928 is approximate; but it is underestimated rather than overestimated, since various authorities have given the returns for last year as approximately $275,000,000, a figure which easily would have been surpassed if it had not been presidential election year in the United States. Most of Canada's revenue from holiday travel is derived from vacationists from the neighboring republic.

It will be some time before the details of the tourist business for this year's holiday season have been compiled by the Bureau of Statistics. It is confidently expected, however, that the $300,000,000 mark will be reached and probably passed. How the traffic has increased from year to year is clearly shown in the statistics we have quoted. These figures indicate how valuable an asset to the Dominion the tourist trade is, since it constitutes an "invisible" turnover which is surpassed in the value of wealth alone among the seventy leading commodities exported from Canada in the fiscal year of 1927-1928.

The important point to bear in mind in regard to the country's revenue from tourist travel is that it is earned by a comparatively modest capital expenditure on the part of governments. It is true more attention is being given to highways, the conditioning of those already built, and the construction of new ones; but these are provisions essential to our own requirements. The principal provision, on the other hand, is that made by transportation companies and hotel proprietors, while business in general looks after its own interests.

It is worth noting, incidentally, that each year Canada is visited by more people from the Old World, not only those who are merely on holiday bent, but also those who come to study the country and its opportunities from a business point of view. This increases the knowledge of Canadian conditions and must pave the way for a greater economic interest in the Dominion.

ACCEPTING THE VERDICT

THE TORONTO STAR AND THE TO-ronto Globe have taken the result of the recent election in Ontario like good journalistic sportsmen. The Star says the result was convincing, that the province did not make one of those half-way and dubious decisions that has to be examined for its meaning. Ontario wanted some more of Premier Ferguson and his policies, and it is going to have them.

The Globe is perhaps not quite so philosophical. Although it recognizes the verdict as admitting of no question as to its decisiveness, it is frankly disappointed, not so much from the partisan point of view—for the main issue, of course, was the Government's administration of the Liquor Control Act—but because it fears the public of Ontario will still have more facilities for purchasing liquor than is good for it.

Both newspapers fought a hard campaign against the Ferguson Government, mainly upon the liquor question, but the people of the province apparently took the stand that the Government control measure should be given a longer trial before it is interfered with.

THE SOLUTION NOT IN CANADA

R. T. HON. J. H. THOMAS TOLD THE British House of Commons yesterday that he did not pay his recent visit to Canada to discuss migration, although he said this vital matter was discussed with the Canadian Government. He argued that it was a profound mistake to mix migration with the question of unemployment in Britain. And while they had no right to try to force people to go to Canada or elsewhere, the Minister declared, they had no right to prevent them going.

It has been said in plain terms many times that if any statesman in Great Britain imagines Canada either could or would settle the unemployment problem by admitting vast armies of idle men, he has only a very faint conception of the significance of the situation as it affects both countries. Primarily the solution of the difficulty lies in Britain herself, and nowhere else. Nor is it for Canada or for any other Dominion to tell her how she should set about finding the remedy. There is a very great difference between conditions in the Old and New Worlds. Since we are more familiar with agricultural pursuits in this country, however, we naturally wonder why, instead of being so utterly dependent upon other countries for her food, Britain does not formulate some practical scheme for bringing under production more of those vast areas which provide nothing more substantial than facilities for the recreation of those who neither toil nor spin. Since the war, when stern necessity demanded greater production of food at home, the acreage which has reverted to meadowland has been increasing from year to year.

This question of food production, moreover, may be considered from another standpoint. The country has been told by those who are barely anything more than luke-warm towards the proposals for disarmament that Britain must continue to support a large navy—by enormous unproductive expenditure—because she is able to stock her larder with only a few weeks' supply. It would seem reasonable to argue that if more land were brought under cultivation, the immediate result would be more employment all round, with the case for a costly navy considerably weakened by practical economics.

It follows, of course, that as soon as the question is discussed along these lines, the cry of confiscation goes up to high heaven. Mr. Thomas and his colleagues realize this better than most people. But it would seem that an almost unexampled condition demands an unusual remedy. The number of unemployed has remained more or less stationary for the last few years. The Baldwin Government did not seem to be able to cope with it. Nor has anything of a startling nature been disclosed by the Government now in office. Sympathetic admirers of Mr. Thomas in Great Britain wish him well in one of the greatest tasks with which any statesman has been called upon to deal.

HEROES ON THE LAKES

THE CAR FERRY MILWAUKEE FOUN-ders in a storm on Lake Michigan and more than fifty lives are lost; and the tragedy calls attention to one more of those little-known trades in which a tradition of heroism and endurance is so much taken for granted that no one ever thinks about it.

One who does not live near the Great Lakes may, to begin with, be slightly puzzled by this story of a shipwrecked car ferry. On the coasts a car ferry is about as exciting a craft as a mud-scow. It is often a long, open barge, on which trains are carried. But not on Lake Michigan.

Of all the ships that sail that occasionally tempestuous body of water, the car ferry is the one that runs into the most excitement and danger. It is a full-sized steamship, in the first place; a high-sided craft of steel, with over-hanging bows and considerable breadth of beam, quite capable of sailing any sea.

In the second place, it is about the only lake steamer that follows its schedule all winter. The regular lake freighters seek snug berths when November comes and lie there until April. The car ferry keeps at it. And of all the jobs calculated to make a seaman old before his time, cruising about Lake Michigan in the dead of winter is one of the very best.

Lake Michigan's winter storms would do credit to Cape Horn. The lake, more often than not, is jammed full of pack ice. The winds come howling down all the way from Hudson Bay, bringing snow, sleet, fog and other menaces. Trying to bring a ship to harbor at the end of night in a January storm, when the swirling snow makes the lighthouse invisible and an error of 100 yards in direction will put you on a reef, to be battered by twenty-five-foot combers, is no soft task.

But the ferries have a tradition—"hang the weather, the ferries always run"—and they live up to it. Once in a while, in winter-time, a car ferry gets stranded in the ice, miles from shore, and stays there for a few days, or a week, or more; but that is all part of the job. Once in a great while something goes wrong below, as it did with the Milwaukee; one of the freight cars breaks loose and goes ramming about like a malevolent trip hammer. In that case the sailors are very lucky if they ever see their homes again.

That does not happen often, of course. The men who operate the car ferries are real sailors, and they bring their ships through with splendid regularity. But it is no weakling's job.

The world is full of callings like that; callings in which a high tradition demands that danger be ignored and discomfort forgotten. The men who follow them are heroes. But we never notice them—until, once in a while, something like this Lake Michigan tragedy occurs and calls them to our notice.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

ALTOGETHER TOO LONG
The Pembroke Standard-Observer

It takes seven hours to go to and return from Ottawa by train, so if parties in Pembroke want to do some business in the city and get home the same night, they have no time for sitting around the round in the Chateau. The time spent on the train is altogether too long, and it is not necessary.

SPECULATORS' DANGEROUS DRIVING
J. L. Carlin in The Observer (London)

"Nothing," says the (Liberal) Yellow Book, "can protect the born gull from the born crook." No doubt. But the ordinary investor when gullied is no more necessarily a congenital idiot than a pedestrian knocked down by a motor car. In the same way more financial casualties and disasters are caused by "dangerous driving" than by the deliberate schemes of congenial impostors.

A THOUGHT

I have shewed you all things, how that so labouring ye ought to support the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how He said, It is more blessed to give than to receive.—The Acts xx 35.

The best thing to give to your enemy is forgiveness to an opponent, tolerance; to a friend, your heart; to your child, a good example; to a father, deference; to your mother, conduct that will make her proud of you; to yourself, respect; to all men, charity.—Mrs. Balfour.

Loose Ends

Miss Wilding admits the failure of a great experiment—which was to be expected—the courts avoid a decision on the mystery of life—King Michael wears long trousers—and Mr. Hoover says many profound things.

By H.B.W.

LAST MONTH the world was told in The Cosmopolitan Magazine about the latest "eugenic baby" by the infant's somewhat gushing mother: how well it would get on without a father; and how satisfactory it was to rear a family without the trouble of family ties. This month The Cosmopolitan presents the completed results of just such an experiment started seventeen years ago. Miss Rose Wilding, who also had a baby while refusing to marry just because she didn't want to add because she had her own ideas on such things, tells how this arrangement worked out. And to the amazement of Miss Wilding, it seems to have worked out very badly indeed.

SHE FINDS that her son, who has not yet been told of the circumstances of his birth directly, though it is blazoned forth to The Cosmopolitan's 2,000,000 odd readers, is not at all satisfied. So dissatisfied is he, in fact, that Miss Wilding, at the time she wrote her article, had not summoned up enough courage to tell him. Try as she will, she cannot understand why he should object to her breach of ordinary convention, but she fears that he will hate her for it. Altogether she seems to think that the experiment has not been a success, because the world still has such old-fashioned and primitive ideas about such things.

THAT, OF COURSE, is where Miss Wilding and other radical experimenters make their mistake. The world is not old-fashioned, primitive about such things. Long before the arrangement of marriage was evolved babies were born under circumstances similar to those adopted by Miss Wilding, but the world found this unsatisfactory, for the successful bringing up of children seems to require the influence of a father as well as a mother. Children who lack either are under a grave handicap. Whoever deliberately places them in such a position assumes a serious responsibility. Miss Wilding has just found that out and has made a tragedy for herself and her son. The world which Miss Wilding thinks so old-fashioned had found out several scores of centuries before the time of Miss Wilding and in advance of the publication of The Cosmopolitan Magazine. To protect the upbringing of the race it invented the arrangement of marriage and it seems to be about the only arrangement possible. Were it necessary to demonstrate the precise need of fathers in our scheme of things Miss Wilding's article has done it; for no father, I feel sure, would have permitted the misfortune of his son to be sold to Mr. Hearst's magazine in this fashion and given to the world for entertainment.

WHILE THESE matters were under consideration by an enlightened public, jurists were considering seriously and with proper reverence a somewhat kindred question, namely whether a baby is an act of God. Helen Hayes, American actress, recently withdrew from the cast of a play called "Coquette" while it was on the road, giving as her reason that she was about to have a baby. The producer ordered the play closed without notice and five members of the cast at once demanded extra salary on the ground that the rules of the Actors' Equity Association had been broken. The producer defended himself on the ground that he was allowed under the Equity contract, to close the show for certain specific causes, including fire and "an act of God." He declared the Hayes baby most certainly was an act of God and refused to pay the actors' salaries.

THIS WAS the question which arbitrators of Equity faced in pressing the case, and as they went into it they found that it involved the whole of life itself. To decide if they would have to hang down all the philosophers and scientists now failed and they gave it up as a bad job. Fortunately, however, they discovered that under the contract there was nothing to prevent the producer from hiring a substitute for Miss Hayes (in private life Mrs. Charles MacArthur), and the case was settled on that basis. The big problem at issue remained unsettled.

EVERYTHING that money and pomp and the royal tinsel of Balkan royalty can do to make an impossible act out of young King Michael of Rumania, is being done with enthusiasm. The latest development, in this conspiracy against the poor boy was revealed in Bucharest recently when His Seven-Year-Old Majesty returned from the country wearing a man's lounge suit with long trousers. And of course, the government and the army fawned upon him as if his grown-up clothes were a special dispensation from on high. In future this tiny child apparently is going to be clothed as a man.

IT IS possible to understand such things in the Balkans, but as a matter of fact, many small boys on this enlightened continent are being treated just as badly. While their fathers are taking to short trousers, the plus-fours of the golf links, now used anywhere, for all purposes, their tiny sons are being dressed up in long ones. Both are hideous fashions and contrary to the intentions of nature. For they seek to rob boys of boyhood and to confer it upon old men who should be sitting by the fireside with a red shawl instead of chasing a ball with sky-blue stockings.

PRESIDENT HOOVER seems to have made some profound observations when he addressed the gathering which recently celebrated Mr. Edison's invention of the electric light. He said, among other things, that life now-a-days requires less and less labor. The automobile and the aeroplane save us from walking. The radio saves from going to parties, rallies, night clubs and football games. Television may shortly relieve us of going to the movies. Soon the only work left for us will be our play, which even now is the most strenuous part of our lives. And if someone will only enlarge the cups of putting greens a successful man will be able to live without exerting himself at all.

The Victoria Daily Times, November 5, 1904

W. Sloan, Liberal candidate for Comox-Atlin, has been returned to the House of Commons by acclamation.

Dr. Ernest Hall, of Vancouver, this morning purchased a 90x120-foot lot on Yates Street, belonging to the De Cosme estate.

IMPROVEMENTS ARE PLANNED BY ESQUIMALT

Extension of Grafton St. and Work on Dangerous Corners Discussed by Council

The proposal to extend Grafton Street at a cost of $200,000, decision to close Kindersley Road between Short Street and Harman Avenue and acceptance of a tender from the Western Steel Products Limited for fifty garbage cans, featured the business transacted by the Esquimalt Council at its meeting in the Municipal Hall last night.

Reporting on the request of a land purchaser in the district that Grafton Street be extended, Municipal Engineer H. F. Bourne stated that a house was being constructed in that locality valued at $7,000. In order to give access to this dwelling the street would have to be continued for a short distance, he stated. In pursuance of its policy of aiding builders in the district, the council moved that the work be done.

WANT SPORT FIELD
A communication from the Department of National Defence asking that Kindersley Road between Short Street and Harman Avenue be closed in order to give the men in the barracks ground a sports field, was read. The department offered to pay any expense connected with the closing of the road and urged the council to have this work carried through. The suggestion was adopted and the municipal solicitor was instructed to draw up a by-law covering the closing of the road for the next meeting.

The Western Steel Products Company was awarded the contract for supplying the municipality with fifty garbage cans at $2.70 each.

Discussion of the improvement of the corner of Mainway Street and Esquimalt Road was gone into at some length during the meeting. It was generally admitted that this corner was dangerous for traffic. As an outcome of the discussion, the municipal engineer was instructed to look over the situation and report back to the council at its next meeting.

OTHER IMPROVEMENTS
Other improvement work concerning the removal of a bluff of rock on Admirals Road, was also referred to the engineer for a report, as was Mr. Peters' request for a new sidewalk on Peters Street.

During the evening, the sale of four reverted lots in the district by the Vancouver Island Realty Company was ratified.

Two invitations, one from the Provincial-Royal-Jubilee Hospital for the unveiling ceremonies of some new pictures in the building on November 14, and the other for the Victoria Ladies' Choir's concert on November 15, were accepted.

COMPETITION FROM BUSSES IS PROTESTED

B.C.E.R. Complains to City
Council Over Oak Bay Bus
Operations

City Outside Staff Want to Know If Increased Wages
Are For All

Formal protest against the Royal Blue Line buses, which recently instituted the Oak Bay stage service from the city, in so far as their operation might fairly be said to conflict with the operation of street cars over the same route, was filed with the City Council last night by A. T. Goward, on behalf of the B.C.E.R. Company Limited.

Under the city agreement of 1920 the corporation was obliged to ensure that no competition would take place on street car routes, the city was re-imposed. This was the no-jointly agreement, allowing for a six cent fare on street cars and seven cent lighting rate for houses.

Simultaneously a letter from Hervey E. C. Hayward of the Oak Bay Council suggested that the city pass a by-law naming the route that might be followed by the Blue Line buses in their service between the terminals. The suggested route is along Oak Bay Avenue to Fort Street, to Yates Street, to Douglas Street, to Blanshard Street, and return by way of Yates, Fort and Oak Bay Avenue to Oak Bay.

On the advice of City Solicitor H. S. Fringle, the council voted to have a special by-law prepared, restricting the Blue Line to the streets named, in operation of its Oak Bay service. Representation should also be heard from the Blue Line, advised Alderman W. T. Straith, concurring in the action taken by the council.

When the council passed a general increase of 25 cents a day to outside workers, did it intend to include meter readers, bell deliverers, water pipe patrolmen, caretakers, construction foremen and superintendents and the operators at Johnson Street Bridge? This was the query put to the council by F. M. Preston, City Engineer.

Last week the council authorized an increase for day workers on the outside staff on a split vote. The language in which the motion was recommended was not specifically what was intended to be covered by the blanket resolution. Now it has been left to the finance committee to review the facts and report back to the council. Meanwhile, the increase is in the air.

WANT MORE CLUSTERS
The council rejected for want of sufficient signatures a petition to have cluster lights installed on the north side of Humboldt Street, between Government and Douglas Streets, by the local improvement committee, of paying for the work. E. L. Tait, Edward C. Warren and Robert Baird signed the petition, on behalf of the Vancouver Island Transportation Company, a private owner, and the Union Club, respectively.

The petitioners represented land assessed at $50,800 or less by $5,000 than half the land value within the block on that side, it was stated. Recently the council authorized clusters for the south side of the block, in agreement with the Canadian Pacific Railway, who will pay a portion of the cost. The petition was filed.

The council went again on record as being in favor of compulsory health insurance. Alderman E. S. Woodward opposed the vote, on the ground that no choice of a physician was left open and without that privilege he could not support the stand taken by the remainder of the council. The matter arose over the provincial questionnaire, which is being circulated to all municipalities in the Province.

BEACON HILL BOUNDARY
A special survey of seventeen parcels of land on the west side of Douglas Street, between Simcoe and Toronto Streets, was authorized, with A. S. G. Musgrave named to do the work. The city will provide advances for the undertaking, to be reimbursed under the usual procedure for a special survey. The westerly boundary of Beacon Hill Park may have clouded titles to property unjustly and the survey will set this at rest, the council was informed.

A special vote of commendation was passed to Mr. and Mrs. Davies, caretakers of the City Hall for the last twenty-two years and now retiring on their superannuation. After two hours and fifteen minutes the council adjourned.

Royal Oak, Nov. 5.—The Royal Oak Badminton Club held a very successful party on Friday evening at the "Wayside Inn," East Esplanade, with a good number of members and friends present.

The evening was enjoyably spent in games and dancing. Refreshments were served by the ladies. The next game will be held on Tuesday evening in the Royal Oak Hall.

The Royal Oak Women's Institute will hold the first dance of the season in their hall on Friday evening, Nov. 8. Mrs. J. E. Shields, who has been the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Russell, Cordova Bay, has returned to her home in Eastern Ontario.

Mrs. Charles Whitehead, Royal Oak, left for England last week, where she will visit her father.

Sudbury, Ont., Nov. 5.—Routing of the Canadian National Railway main line so it will pass through Sudbury and Copper Cliff is believed here to be contemplated because of the purchase of a large number of lots in the north of Sudbury by an agent for the C.N.R. The properties purchased are immediately northwest of a line between the Canadian National spur to Sudbury and the Algoma Eastern Railway.

From the extent of the properties that have been purchased, it is believed establishment of a divisional point is indicated.

Married Only Three Days But Cost Him $4,500

San Francisco, Nov. 5.—Three days of marital happiness cost Hugh Montgomery, legal adviser for the Dollar S. Company, more than $4,500. This was disclosed yesterday when Montgomery told superior Judge James Conlon that Catherine Shirley Montgomery had deposited all the money he gave her to her own account. In asking an annulment Montgomery said he gave her $1,150 before they were married in Oregon City, Ore., April 12 last. They returned to San Francisco and three days later, upon learning she had spent the money, he gave her $3,500 to take care of emergencies. Judge Conlon granted the annulment.

"My skin trouble started with pimples and red blotches that affected my face, neck, hands and head. The pimples were hard, large and red, and festered and scaled over, causing disfigurement. They also caused severe itching and burning, and I could not sleep at night with the pain. The trouble lasted about two months. I tried several other remedies which did not give me any relief. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they helped me after a few applications, and in two weeks I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Muriel Gibson, Huggert, Alberta.

TELLS OF BRITISH PEACE CRUSADE

Local Council of Women Hear Talk By Mrs. Laura Jamieson

An interesting account of her meeting in London with a number of members of Parliament and others identified with the world peace movement, was given by Mrs. Laura Jamieson, judge of the Burnaby Juvenile Court, before the Local Council of Women yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Jamieson spoke of the formation of the Peace Crusade committee, following the great women's peace crusade in England a few years ago, this committee having for its main objective the raising of public opinion to ask the British Government to sign the "optional provision" calling for the settlement of international disputes by arbitration. This committee prepared a questionnaire for submission to the candidates at the recent general election and, according to Mrs. Jamieson, the candidates of the Labor Party gave the most satisfactory answers on the question of international relationship and world peace to those who prepared the questionnaire.

ANGLO-AMERICAN RELATIONS

The speaker told of a tea given at the House of Commons, which she attended, when Mrs. Morgan, a noted American advocate of the world peace movement, spoke before a noted gathering which included Lord Robert Cecil, Norman Angell, the author of "The Great Illusion," and now editor of "Foreign Affairs," Miss Ellen Willinson, M.P., Dr. Marion Phillips, M.P., and many others interested in the subject.

NAVAL TRADITION

Dr. Norwood, pastor of the City Temple, London, who acted as chairman at this gathering, had referred to the old British tradition that Great Britain, being an island and unable to produce sufficient foodstuffs for its population, required a large navy to protect that food supply in the event of war.

COURAGEOUS LEADERSHIP

Mrs. Jamieson referred to the important strides in international relationships through the visit to the United States of Premier Ramsay MacDonald, and observed that public opinion, plus courageous leadership, were the essential factors in international relationships. He was a courageous leader, because for many years he had held sound and strong convictions concerning peace and war, and that he had endured imprisonment for them.

BUSINESS MEETING

At the business meeting preceding the address, Miss Lottie Bowron was invited to speak at the January meeting concerning her travels through the Peace River country. Mrs. Ada Tonkin will be invited to speak on her work with the women police in Vancouver at the annual meeting of the council in February. Mrs. Llewellyn Thomas, convener of the committee on British films, drew the attention of the members to the series of British Gaumont films being brought to the Playhouse Theatre in the near future. She also reported that a delegation had interviewed a local bus company and asked for the elimination of the words "Outdoors in America" from its buses, a request which had speedily been acceded to, to the gratification of the council.

North Saanich Club Hallow'en Dance Success

A beautifully decorated and multi-colored dance hall welcomed many members and guests last Thursday evening to the North Saanich Service Club's annual hallow'en dance and frolic. Floating streamers hung from side to side of the hall and here and there peeped a witch or fairy, whilst on the stage beside the orchestra sat "Mother Witch" bottling her magic charms over a glowing fire. The evening was the occasion of the return visit of the Pimley and Ritchie softball team and their followers. After supper the Pimley and Ritchie boys brought forth a bicycle pump and pump and announced that a prize would be awarded to the last person to pump the air out of the tube. After two gentlemen exhausting themselves by furious pumping, and the tube growing to an astonishing size, exploded, which resulted in the prize being awarded to one of the visiting ladies. The proceeds from this dance and succeeding ones will be devoted to the building of the gymnasium for the children, which is expected to be started very early in the new year. Jubilee Hospital W.A.—The sewing meeting of the Jubilee Hospital W.A. will be held in the Nurses' Home on Wednesday at 2 o'clock.

WOULD ABOLISH CADET TRAINING IN THE SCHOOLS

Mrs. Laura Jamieson Suggests This as Canada's Contribution to World Peace

At University Women's Club Meeting Urges Greater Spirit of Tolerance

"In my opinion one of the greatest gestures Canada could make towards the movement for world peace would be to give a lead in disarmament by doing away with the cadets and officers' training corps in our civil educational institutions. We in Canada have twelve times as many school cadets as Great Britain in proportion to population. Out of an annual expenditure of $20,000,000 spent for military purposes in Canada annually, $500,000 is expended on the cadet movement. . . . If the Department of Militia needs soldiers it should make them out of grown men, and not out of our children."

This was the reply given by Mrs. Laura Jamieson, juvenile judge of the Burnaby Juvenile Court, to a question submitted to her last evening at the Victoria College at the close of an enlightening and interesting address as to what gesture Canada could make to Europe for the furtherance of world peace. She spoke on the subject of "Some Impressions of Europe; Its Charms and Problems," under the auspices of the University Women's Club, Miss Cann presiding.

Mrs. Jamieson spent the summer months this year in Europe, attending educational courses at Prague and Geneva and making contacts with advocates of world peace in London. While in Geneva she represented the Provincial P.T.A. at the World Federation of Educational Associations, which represents the official teachers' organizations of the world.

This body, in the course of an interesting discussion as to the best method of inculcating peace through education, had gone on record as recommending the abolition of military training in educational institutions, urging that the cadet movement be done away with and in its place be established proper physical education, games and sports to inculcate high character and trained intelligence.

The speaker noted that this decision was practically unanimous, and delegates from those countries with large standing armies which might well be expected to support the movement, urged that the cadet movement be done away with and in its place be established proper physical education, games and sports to inculcate high character and trained intelligence.

A plea for a spirit of greater tolerance in Canada was made by Mrs. Jamieson. While she was in Prague news was received of the clashes between the Fascist and Socialist groups in central Austria, the very country whose domestic quarrel had started the world conflagration in 1914. This recent clash was the result of a difference of opinion between two economic groups, the speaker observed. At one time differences between religious groups had led to war, then came clashes between political factions as a cause of strife, and now economic differences were one of the biggest factors in causing war.

"We have at last got to a point where nations are engendering a more harmonious feeling between each other, and being provided for their common good. The League of Nations is almost greater menace. We must try to bring about a greater spirit of tolerance," she urged.

"I was particularly struck with the tolerant attitude in Great Britain. In Hyde Park, the soap-box orators air their views on Communism and other subjects, and as a result there is little trouble with the Communists in England. In Austria they organize groups of Fascists to quell them with armed force. I come back to Canada and what I find? In Toronto in which the talk was about the Communists and their being forbidden to hold their meeting in a public park. I am told that the next day the Communists were one of the biggest factors in causing war."

"I think we in Canada could well follow the lead of tolerance shown by Great Britain. It is the greatest contribution Britain has to offer to the world was not its government system but the spirit in which that government is carried out—that of free discussion and a toleration of other people's opinions. The restraints and restrictions imposed upon minorities in other European countries has been one of the most prolific sources of strife and warfare."

SENATOR DUNDURAND
Mrs. Jamieson spoke of the high esteem in which Senator Dundurand, who had represented Canada as president of the League of Nations Assembly, was held in Europe, where he had done much to secure the better treatment of minorities in Europe. The happy occasions under which she in Canada live, said Mrs. Jamieson, make our responsibility to the unhappy minorities in Europe so much the greater.

IMMIGRANTS' CONTRIBUTION
"Canada by giving a lead in disarmament and arbitration can do much to help the people of Europe. They in their turn have a great contribution to make to us in their art and music. Their emigrants bring to us much of value in the shape of a wonderful instinct and ability for handicrafts. If we were to take these immigrants and instead of immediately trying to standardize them and Canadianize them would try to preserve the best of their cultural and artistic characteristics, their contribution would greatly enrich our Canadian life and help to encourage a deeper Canadian culture, which would be a great deal richer than that European background and tradition."

Mrs. Jamieson sketched some of the charms of Europe, telling of the experiments made in the teaching of eurhythmics at Geneva by Jacques d'Alcega, whose pupils gave a demonstration of spontaneous dancing, which promises to revolutionize physical education, made clear their conviction that the schools should not be used for military purposes as this was not in the best interests of the child.

GREAT TOLERANCE ERGED
The speaker noted that this decision was practically unanimous, and delegates from those countries with large standing armies which might well be expected to support the movement, urged that the cadet movement be done away with and in its place be established proper physical education, games and sports to inculcate high character and trained intelligence.

HERE RUNS THE BRIDE

The way young people rush into matrimony these days! ... Ten times a bridesmaid and finally a bride—alt in one year—here you catch a fleeting glimpse of Miss Elizabeth Nancy, society debutante, at her own wedding in Berkshire, England. The groom, W. Mount, son of Sir William and Lady Mount, is pictured coming in second best in the race to the altar. It was one of the most important weddings of the year in British titled society—and certainly the fastest.

More Santa Claus Letters

The Victoria Times offers a prize of $25 for the best letter of not more than 150 words telling just why you know there is a Santa Claus. For the letter which is judged second to the best there is an award of $15; the third prize is $10 and the fourth $1. For the next five letters to receive honorable mention The Times will give $1.

There is only one condition attached to the contest. You must be less than twelve years old. All letters must be received at the office of The Times not later than midnight of Wednesday, November 20. Announcements of the winners with their letters will be made the following Monday, November 25.

Now is the time to get busy. There certainly is a Santa Claus and all the world knows that he lives right on top of the world, way up at the North Pole. Of course, there are some little boys and girls who don't think there is a Santa, but that is just all they know about it. You can prove it to them now that you know there is one and he will come to see you at Christmas and with the money from your letter you can buy lots of presents and candy.

Address your letter to the Santa Claus Editor, The Victoria Daily Times, and be sure you mail it in plenty of time. The Times will give your name among the winners.

HEARD HIS BELLS
Phyllis Booth
Age 8 years.
Dear Editor: I have been good to my mother.

Dear Santa Claus: I myself one Christmas night when I was awake I heard your little bells and when I looked out of the window, I saw your sleigh and reindeer. The next thing I heard came to the door and it was Santa and I peered around the corner and sure enough it was Santa and I did not tell my brothers and sisters because I had no time I was so excited to see what he had brought for me and my sisters and brothers. But when we had dinner we had to eat after dinner we gave the toys that Santa brought us. Every Christmas when I be good I get lots of toys but when I be bad I get a little bit of toys. But this Christmas I have been good so I know Santa Claus will come to my house because I have been good. Good-by.

To my Dear old Santa.
I believe in Santa Claus every Christmas. I never missed, been good now why should I believe in Santa Claus because I get every thing I want I believe in Santa Claus.

To Victoria Daily Times,
Why I believe in Santa Claus:
I believe in Santa because mummy tells me and she is truthful.
I asked Santa to bring me a blackboard and he brought me one and told me he could not get me a better one because all the other little children asked for them before me.
It was not mummy's writing or daddy's so it must have been Santa's writing.

November 2nd, 1929

Dear Santa Claus Editor:
I know there is a Santa Claus because I have seen him in the theatres and in the Hudson Bay. Santa always asks you what you want, too. Sometimes I leave some leaves for him. Daddy always cleans the chimney well so Santa won't get any soot on him. So that's why I know there is a Santa Claus. Hoping you like my letter.

Your truly,

WOULD LIKE TO VISIT HIM
Ronald Joyce
Age 8 years.
Victoria, B.C.
Oct. 26, 1929.

Dear Editor: I know there is a Santa Claus because he brings my brother and I almost everything we ask for. The boys and girls who do not believe in Santa Claus do not get as many things as we do. So I think Santa Claus knows the children who love him.

There is a boy who lives near us, who says he does not believe in Santa Claus and he never gets a toy from him.

Of course we have to be good as he does not like bad children.

I wish I could visit him in his ice palace at the North Pole. I'd love to see him and find out how he makes all the toys. I would like to see him make a bicycle for me.

Wishing you a Merry Xmas,
I remain,
Ronald Joyce.

JANET KNOWS FOR CERTAIN NOW
Victoria,
Nov. 3rd, 1929.

To Editor of Times,
Victoria.
Sirs, I want to tell you that I know there is a Santa Claus, because last Christmas Eve, I went to bed and before going to sleep, I hung up my stockings, as I felt sure Santa would come, and then I went to sleep and sleep good and awaked early and looked round and sure thing I saw some one had been here whilst I slept, and I knew it was Santa Claus as in my stocking was a lot of nice things, and lots of candy so I am sure there is a Santa Claus.

Victoria, B.C.
Nov. 4, 1929.

Dear Sir,
I know there is a Santa Claus because he brings me toys every Christmas, also other things good to wear. To keep me warm, I leave my bedroom door open, and I leave cookies for him to eat if he wishes on my little table in my room. I used to hang my stocking up but I had to get something bigger so I asked mamma for a pillow case, which was just the thing. Santa left me some very good things, I hope he will call on me early this year as I shall go to bed early to give him a good chance to fill up my pillow slip while I am sleeping. I hope every other boy and girl gets good things from Santa Claus the same as I have got yours truly,

Nov. 3, 1929.

Dear Editor:
I know there is a Santa Claus because he comes down from North on the boat with his reindeer. I saw him last year with all his funny animals. I saw him in Hudson Bay. I shook hands with him he kissed me and asked me what I wanted for Christmas. I told him a shooter. He said I would get one if I was a good boy. I got it on Christmas so I know there is a Santa Claus. Age 7 years.

Yours truly,
Roy Ward.

SICK GIRL GOT HER SIGNET RING

Victoria, B.C.
Nov. 4th, 1929

Dear Santa Claus,
I believe in you because you come and visit us on Christmas. Last Xmas (aft) about two weeks before Xmas I was coming home from school and I had a terrible pain and I went home. The next day I was not feeling well so mother took me to the doctors and I had to go to the hospital (aft) about a week before Xmas I had an operation about one o'clock I just waited very impatiently for two o'clock to see if you had left me a signet ring. At about ten to two mother came and I said, "Mother did Santa bring my ring?"

She said, "Yes."
So mother gave it to me. It was in a lovely velvet box with to Elsie from Santa on the cover & I said to mother Oh I am sure the Santa is real & as I was a wee boy Santa has never been able to have any Xmas Plum pudding and other lovely things on your birthday. So Santa you are positive that I believe in you.

Yours truly,
Elsie Brooks,

DRESSES UP CHRISTMAS TREE
Dear Editor,
I know there is a Santa, because he brings me presents. He fills my stocking too. And all my friends say there is a Santa, so I believe he is true. And mother and dad are up to bed so early, that I know there is a Santa. I know there is a Santa because I saw him in the paper. Then I see his picture in the paper. I also read about him in books and papers. You go to see him at picture shows too. He dresses up our Christmas tree and puts candy on it.

YOUR BABY and MINE

By MARY MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies this office will bring a personal reply.

SOME COMMONPLACE SITUATIONS
MISHANDLED

Sometimes people say to me: "Why don't you tell that mother not to give her baby a bottle, or let the child eat crackers all day, or take that pacifier out of his mouth?" and we can only say that unasked-for advice is usually received with poor grace.

An elderly doctor with three grown daughters stopped a mother on the street the other day and said in a kindly way: "Mother, you ought to have more clothes on your baby, he might catch cold." She said, without as much as a glance at him, "Go home and take care of your own kids."

Of course it was funny, and he laughed as hard as anyone, but this is exactly the attitude with which mothers receive unasked-for advice, even of the very best. But mothers do so many things which do harass the poor person who wants most of all to help them. In the small matter of lifting a baby one finds mother after mother grasping the poor infant by the upper arms and dragging him up from the floor, or out of the buggy or bed, without a thought for the delicate arms that can be literally wrenched from their sockets by such treatment. Is it any wonder babies scream?

In picking up a baby put the outspread hands underneath the arms, cradling the baby firmly around the body. This is a comfortable way for him to be lifted up and not by the arms.

Since we are in this mood we'll tell you two more common practices, both of which are fairly common sights. When baby is changed how many of you give him a powder box to play with? How many of you shake the powder around in a generous cloud letting baby breathe it in, or else liek up loose powder from the can? Now be honest!

One mother had her baby treated for eczema for months until the doctor discovered the baby was being subjected to a cloud of powder every time he was changed, and then the eczema ended. There have been cases reported in medical journals in which children, or rather infants, have died from the effects of inhaling powders containing lead.

Powders have their rightful place. But they should be used carefully so that baby doesn't breathe in their dust, or eat loose powder from the cans. How about teaching baby to walk? Are you trying to do this by putting baby into a contrivance for that purpose? Lots of you are—and then wonder six months later why baby can't walk without it.

In order to walk baby has to learn balance. He learns this by pulling himself to his feet, tottering about, making tentative steps, heaving this way and that until he masters the art. He can't learn this by sitting down and propelling his feet on the floor. All we king contrivances are all right for the child who can already walk; they are a check to the walking abilities of the small baby.

TOURIST SEASONFour Thousand Inquiries

vertisementsRailroad and Automobile
Travel From California
Higher

Nearly 4,000 inquiries were received from advertising placed in sixteen newspapers and magazines by the Puget Sounders and British Columbian Associated during the summer according to a report just received by George I. Warren, publicity commissioner.

Advertising was placed in Fresno, San Diego, Los Angeles, Oakland, Sacramento, Portland, Salt Lake and San Francisco and totals compiled at the end of July show the exact number of answers to be 3,922.

The report also deals with travel figures for the summer and fall, reading in part as follows:

With the close of the summer and fall period of tourist travel from California, a check has been made which shows a decided increase in automobile traffic north. In view of the fact that Washington began registration of non-resident automobile licenses on July 1, the Oregon figures were taken for a comparison with 1928. Registration of non-resident automobiles in Oregon, for the first nine months of 1929, show a total of 89,071, compared with 79,372 for the first nine months of 1928. Of the 1929 total, 55,000 were cars with California licenses, compared with 44,000 California licenses during the first nine months of 1928. This is an increase of 10,471 California cars northbound through Oregon.

While not bearing so directly on Puget Sounders' travel, a check made in Spokane for a 100-day period, from June 1 to approximately September 15, showed 107,996 automobiles, with an estimated number of 370,821 passengers. This is an increase, the 1928 season having shown for the same period 96,380 cars with 337,365 passengers.

Railroad travel from California also showed an increase, the Southern Pacific Railroad reporting approximately five per cent increase over the 1928 season. The Southern Pacific this year spent $40,000 in space in a campaign concentrated in California, calling attention to the Pacific Northwest.

A summary of publicity given the association by the California newspapers, in addition to the advertising space, shows that pictures were used in the tourist section of The San Francisco Chronicle, Los Angeles Times, and The Fresno Bee, the only papers on the schedule with photo sections. A number of first-page articles were used in the resort and automobile sections of the various papers, including The San Francisco Chronicle, Los Angeles Times, Oakland Tribune, Pasadena Star News (in which the association does not advertise), Sacramento Bee, Los Angeles Evening Free Press, Los Angeles Evening Herald, Portland Oregonian,

The Literary Digest for June 1, of this year, also used an article, information for which was furnished by the secretary of the association, describing the evergreen playground of Puget Sound and British Columbia.

Approximately 40,000 copies of the evergreen playground booklet, issued by the association, have been distributed through the Ask Mr. Foster Service, independently through the automobile clubs of Northern and Southern California, the National Automobile Club, and various other information bureaus; in the east through travel and railroad information offices, and directly in answering inquiries which were received from the advertisements.

The secretary still has available approximately 25,000 booklets with which to answer inquiries and start the 1930 season. Inasmuch as 65,000 booklets were obtained from the publishers at the cost of the 50,000 copies ordered.

These booklets, however, also participate in the distribution of approximately 80,000 copies of these booklets by the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, in answering inquiries, and through travel and information bureaus, inasmuch as the same book was used, with a slight change on the cover page.

St. John's Guild—The monthly business meeting of St. John's Guild was held on Monday afternoon in the Guildroom, Mrs. J. N. Forde presiding. The opening prayers were read by Mrs. Chadwick, after which the secretary's and treasurer's reports were presented by Mrs. Tice and Mrs. Batchelor. A letter was read from S. C. Hawkins, treasurer of the Parish Hall Fund, thanking the Guild for a recent donation of $100. Plans were discussed for "Ye Olde-fashioned Faire" to be held in the schoolroom on December 4 and 5. Each organization in the church had agreed to take part, the proceeds to be devoted to the Parish Hall Fund. At the close of the meeting, Mrs. Patterson and Mrs. Swannell served tea.

Knox Church Bazaar—The Ladies' Aid Society of Knox Presbyterian Church will hold a sale of work tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. at the church on Cass Street. There will be for sale fancy and plain needlework, home cooking, candy and a fish pond for the children. There will also be a musical programme and afternoon tea will be served.

Schedule For Commercial League Hockey Teams Is Announced

THE SPORTS MIRROR

ON looking over the hockey situation it appears that the Pacific Coast Hockey League will have a big year. At the annual meeting in Vancouver yesterday all arrangements were made for the opening of the season in Vancouver on November 18, and in Victoria, Portland and Seattle on the following Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, respectively.

Frank Patrick, who has done more for pro hockey than any other individual, will again guide the destinies of the league. Patrick, with the introduction of many rules, the majority of which have been adopted by the National Hockey League, is recognized as the "father of hockey" on the Pacific Coast. During the entire existence of the Pacific Coast Hockey Association Frank acted as its head, and while not president of the Western Hockey League, he was the man behind it and the one who guided it through its difficulties. One of the smartest business deals engineered by Patrick was the sale of the teams in the Western Hockey League to the National Hockey League.

Patrick had considerable to do this season with the clearing up of the financial tangle in Portland. With the Ross Buds ready to operate again this year a big burden has been lifted off the head of the league president. It would have been difficult for the league to operate with only three clubs, unless Seattle had two clubs. With Bobby Howe holding the franchise and looking after the team, Portland should be a financial success this winter.

Neway Lalonde appears to be determined to give Ottawa a first-rate hockey team this winter. The Senators hit an aerial shot last season, finishing in last place in the International group of the N.H.L. The Ottawa Citizen commenting on how the various players are shaping up during practices, has the following to say: "The newcomer, Harold Starr, is fitting in well and although not a true test of a player's ability comes before he gets in a real game, the big Shamrock amateur star seems to be skating well enough, his stickhandling better than fair and he is shooting hard and accurately. With Starr's well-known determination and gameness, he should make good in any man's league. His shooting has been satisfactory to date and when the heavy, body-checking starts, he will take second place to few players."

"Len Grosvenor working overtime to show reasons why he should be given plenty of play during the coming season. He held Lamb even in entire ice for a time and then moved over to right wing, where he showed up well against the fast-skating Killee."

"Allan Shields looks more and more a real hockey player every time out. He is blocking well, skating faster than last season and his rushes straight down the ice are carrying him in on the nets with increasing frequency. Shields appears to be in splendid condition."

When Alec Smith started real training three weeks ago, running at Lansdowne Park and playing rugby with his team, the Ridesau, he weighed 172 1/2 pounds. After three weeks' training he weighs the same to an ounce. This shows the great change that the popular defence man has kept himself in all season.

"Wally Kilmer and Normie Schultz practiced with the squad. Wally is in fine fettle and went well, but Schultz seemed to have trouble with his skates, finding it difficult to keep up with the fast pace."

"Clancy is still Clancy. What more need be said?"

Bill Touhey showed smooth stickhandling ability, but apparently found it hard to team up with the second string forwards and got into the corners often without getting a shot or a pass away."

"The squad as presently constituted seems to be the best one yet. Clancy, Killee, Lamb and Finnigan have the first class speeders. In Smith, Starr and Shields and Grosvenor, they have plenty of rugged, hard-checking ability. They should give good coaching from Lalonde and the team seen to be a fine spirit among the players, a spirit that should make for team play and aggressive play during the coming campaign."

While the crowds fought for tickets to the World Series, few people imagined that over in little Japan they were having their own championship-college team, at that—at which the average attendance exceeded the number watching the World Series. Forty thousand were admitted to each of three games and thousands were turned away. Radio broadcast the results play by play and scoreboards all over the country announced the results.

One man who can look down on the present crop of heavyweights is Primo Carnera, six feet eleven inches, in thin socks. People who are treated to the sight of his 274 pounds creaking the canvas will be reminded of slow-motion pictures of a brick chimney falling. He will fit in the ring standing up, but if he falls over the referee and opponent will have to jump out or be patted into the floor. All he has to do is hold out a glove and swinging at him would do as much good as knocking on the front door of a safe with a tackhammer.

Seven Members of Cubs Limber Up At Opening Practice

First Work-out of Season Held Last Night at Arena; Players Appear in Good Condition With Kelly and Lowe Shaping Up Well; Redpath, Regular Defence Man of Cubs, Tries Out With Pittsburgh and Will Not Be Back; Cliff O'Meara Released.

Victoria Cubs held their initial work-out of the season last night at the Arena. Seven players were on the ice limbering up. Manager "Joey" Anderson occupied a rail position looking over his proteges for the first time. The boys were not allowed to engage in any strenuous practice but just took the kinks out of their muscles in preparation for the more serious work to come. The band of puckchasers included four of last year's club and three newcomers.

SAILORS MAY CINCH CUP TO-MORROW

Win or Draw Against Saanich United Will Give Them Hayward Soccer Trophy

Batchelors Play Hudson's Bay; League Matches Will Be Played on Saturday

In the deciding game of the Hayward Cup series the Navy and Saanich United, Wednesday League football teams, will meet tomorrow afternoon at the Royal Athletic Park. In the other match which will have no bearing on the outcome of the series Batchelors and Hudson's Bay will play at Beacon Hill. McKay will referee the first match and Armstrong the other. Both games will start at 3 o'clock.

The Navy are in first position in the series with an unbeaten record. Saanich United are two points behind, so a win or draw to-morrow will give the tars possession of the trophy for the first time since they have been playing mid-week soccer. Should Saanich win a play-off will be held to decide the holder of the cup.

The Saanich and Navy teams will be as follows: United—Restall, Ashe, Wyatt, Love, Moir, Rigby, Cann, Hawkes, Barry, Stonier and Tooby; Navy—Zanelli, A. Whyte, Plummer, Dyke, Robinson, Johnston, Plummer, Marr, Spriddell, Watt and Goies.

Hudson's Bay—Shimpton, Wallace, Cull, Woodley, Oakman, Newell, Fish, King, Geddes, Atkinson and Gardiner.

All six teams in the First Division will be engaged in regular league matches on Saturday afternoon. The schedule of games follows:

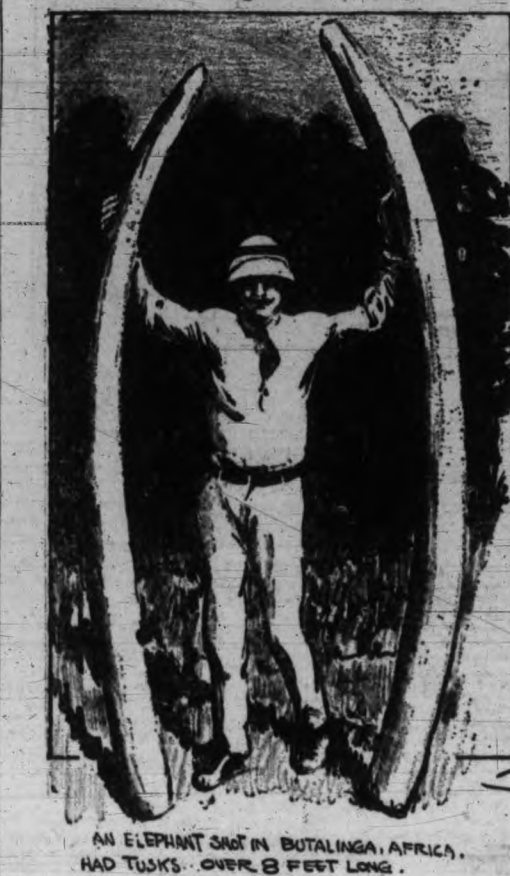

Jokers vs. Five C's at Royal Athletic Park; referee, Woodley.
Victoria West vs. Saanich Thistles at Beacon Hill; referee, Payne.
Point Barracks vs. Equumalt at Work Point Barracks; referee, Armstrong.
Kick-offs at 3 o'clock.

Four of the eight junior league clubs will compete in the semi-final round of the Lower Island Football Association Cup as follows: James Island vs. Oaklands.
Victoria City vs. Y.M.C.A.

Three league fixtures will be played in the two divisions of the juvenile league as follows:
Division I—Sons of England vs. J.B.A.A. at Beacon Hill, upper ground; referee, Sgt. Lindred.
Other three will play at fitting out, other three will play at fitting out.

Each of the four United States yachts will represent about $500,000 when they go over the starting line. Of this something more than $200,000 will be represented by the boat builder's work. The balance will be accounted for by expense, attendant to fitting out, equipment, crew and various incidents. After the elimination race, experts say, it would be difficult to obtain $50,000, one tenth, for the three unsuccessful contenders.

Season Ushered In By Third Emmanuel Baptists, Langford, Willows and Graham-Paiges Win Division Badminton Clubs

Eight badminton clubs of the third division of the Lower Island Badminton League swung into action last night and four matches were decided. Emmanuel Baptists supplied the big surprise of the evening when they defeated the Garrison team by a score of 11-5. J.B.A.A., playing against the Langford Lehighs at Langford, ran into a well-balanced team and went down to a 13-3 defeat. The Willows, playing at home against the Y.M.C.A., managed to register a close win, 9-7. In the fourth fixture the Graham-Paiges defeated the newly-organized cathedral team but not without considerable opposition as the 10-6 score shows.

Emmanuel Baptists were held even in the women's doubles, but went into the lead by taking three out of four men's doubles matches and increased their lead by taking six out of the nine mixed doubles.

Langford experienced little difficulty in winning from the new J.B.A.A. club. They made a clean sweep until the mixed doubles were played, in which the Bays secured their first points.

Cathedral held the Graham-Paiges even in the women's doubles, while their men duplicated in the doubles, but the winners secured their edge in the mixed, when they won six out of eight.

Willows made substantial gains in both the women's and men's doubles when they dropped two out of eight matches, but the association players took five out of eight mixed events.

Following are match scores of the meeting between the Emmanuel Baptists and Garrison, with the Emmanuel players mentioned first:

Mayor Anscomb to Face-off Puck In Opening Battle

Four Clubs All Ready for First Game on November 22; Plimley and Ritchie, Last Year's Champions, Drawn Against Navy, While Jones Bros. Will Clash With Western Steel; Commercial and Garage Leagues to Play Games on Same Night.

With the four teams right on their toes and ready to open the season on Friday, November 22, Ernie Stock, secretary of the Commercial Hockey League, this morning released the schedule for the first half of the league. The second half schedule will be identical the same as that for the first part of the season. In the opening games the Navy will oppose Plimley and Ritchie, last year's champions, while Jones Brothers and the Western Steel will provide the opposition in the second fixture.

Bill Peden Outlawed By Race Moguls

Victoria Rider Draws Suspension From U.S. Body For Riding in Montreal

Ban Will Keep Him Out of Chicago Six-day Race, Which Opens Thursday

Bill "Torchy" Peden, Victoria's Olympic bike racer, who has been making great strides toward the top in competitive cycling since entering the pro ranks, has drawn a suspension from the National Cycling Association of America. This ban, which appears unaccountable, threatens to prevent him from competing in the six-day marathon at Chicago, which opens on Thursday.

The iron-limbed rider who has brought considerable honor to Victoria's sporting fraternity, was outlawed along with nineteen other riders who competed in a meet at Montreal recently. Although the meet was duly sanctioned by the Canadian Wheelman's Association it seems to have been frowned upon by the National Cycling Association of America.

In a wire to his father, Bill stated: "The National Cycling Association suspended all riders who rode in Montreal until April 5. The Canadian body which was supposed to protect riders in the recent meet, is communicating with Paris, but until word is received from headquarters I am outlawed."

Should Peden be unable to compete in the Chicago meet, he will in all probability return to Victoria for a short time.

The root of the trouble seems to be a disagreement between the Canadian Wheelman's Association and the National Cycling Association. The latter had apparently suspended some riders who took part in the meet. However, when these applied for Canadian registration cards they were allowed to ride. The National Wheelman's Association still considered them outlawed and has consequently suspended those who competed with them.

Peden, who was under contract to ride in Montreal, would have been suspended by the Canadian body if he had not completed, while the U.S. moguls threatened to ban him if he did. The local body decided to ride in Montreal and has been suspended.

Coast Ball Loop Will Open Next Season April 8

Avalon, Santa Catalina Island, Cal., Nov. 5.—At the opening session yesterday of Pacific Coast League baseball, the representatives of the league voted to open the 1930 season on Tuesday, April 8. A twenty-eight-week schedule was approved and a unanimous vote was cast for repetition of the split season.

FOXY PHANN All the so-called perfect husbands are still unmarried

Capetown, Union of South Africa, Nov. 5.—"Kid" Nicholson of England beat Mickey Doyle of the United States on a foul in the fourth round of their fifteen-round boxing match here last night.

Arrangements are being made to have the usual opening ceremony with Mayor Anscomb, honorary president of the league, facing the puck in the first game.

This year the Commercial League has arranged with the Garage League to have the games of both leagues played on the same night. This has been made necessary owing to the fact that the Arena could not give the garage men a night to themselves. The Garage League will stage their first game from 6:30 o'clock to 7:30. The Commercial League will always have the next hour, while the leagues will alternate each week on the third hour. The final game of the evening will be played between 9:30 and 10:30 o'clock. Four games will be played each Friday night.

Secretary Stock announced this morning that his league was looking forward to another successful season. The clubs appear to be pretty evenly balanced, and with a number of former senior amateur league players included in the line-ups the brand of hockey should be greatly improved.

Plimley and Ritchie, present holders of the McKay Cup, emblematic of the league championship, announced today that they had signed Chapman, former goalie with the Vancouver Monarchs. This rounds out their club and gives them a first-rate roster of players with which to defend their laurels.

CATARHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are even just a little hard of hearing or have head noises or to your great surprise get 1 ounce of Parment (double strength), and add to it 4 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoon four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Closed nostrils should open, breathing become easier and the mucus clearing, dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone losing hearing or who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

OPEN PEACE TO SOLVE P.G.E.

Speaking before the Women's Conservative Association in the Campbell Building last night, Hon. P. P. Burden, Minister of Lands, suggested the Peace River country as a solution for problems of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

Tremendous resources, not only in the agricultural line, but in coal and other minerals and in timber, would mean a rich flow into British Columbia if the P.G.E. were extended into the Peace area, Mr. Burden said.

Routes by way of Pine River Pass or by Mount Selwyn were suggested by the Minister. The first would tap the rich agricultural areas and the latter some fine mineral deposits.

Mr. Burden warned against any rush of settlers to the Peace area. There was a possibility of difficulty there this winter owing to the fact that the rich agricultural areas and the latter some fine mineral deposits.

Mr. Burden outlined various mineral resources of the Peace area. They were such, he said, that the problem of the P.G.E. could soon be removed if the section was opened up.

Borrowing Cost Oppressive Says Ald. Marchant

Must Repay $878,512 for Use of $395,000 Borrowed in Three Incidental Loan By-laws, City Council Told in Lively Battle on Pay-as-you-go Plan; Council
Gives Two Months' Hoist to Pandora Avenue
Project, But Reaffirms Payment From Revenue Plan.

The Pay-as-you-go flag was unfurled before the City Council last night by Alderman William Marchant, who nailed his colors firmly to the mast before a choppy council sea scuttled his Pandora Avenue ship, and stove in its payment - from revenue planing. There was no assurance that $395,000, the cost of the plan, could be provided from revenue this year, the majority vote ruled, giving a two months' hoist to the idea.

Mr. Marchant went down fighting. In former years the city had borrowed $80,000 in loans for schools which would cost $200,350 to repay, he showed. A twenty-five year loan for hospital purposes which raised $225,000, would require $475,525 to pay off. The sum of $80,000 borrowed on a John-son Street bridge loan would exact $198,650 from the ratepayers before it was retired in thirty years' time. For the three loans cited the city had realized $395,000, and would have to return $878,512, he said.

"Isn't that the wildest kind of civic financing?" volleyed Mr. Marchant. "We borrowed $395,000 under these three loans, and besides paying that back we will have to find $483,512 additional for interest alone!"

In addition, said Mr. Marchant, he would quote the example of the most recent loan, the $100,000 measure in support of the Jubilee Hospital. It would require $187,057 to retire the loan, he said. Productive loans for waterworks were another story, but borrowings for street improvements carried no rebates by way of collectible rates that could be used as a set-off.

His Pandora Avenue plan proposed that out of an anticipated surplus at the end of the year the sum of $39,000 be taken for an immediate start on the permanent construction of a section of Pandora Avenue from Port Street to Camosun Street, with side walks on the north side of the highway. If there were a surplus of revenue a part of it could well be devoted to this purpose, he urged.

Pandora Avenue was one of the thirty-nine locations mentioned by the City Engineer in his survey of estimated requirements for ten years' work in street development. It was this first on the list, continued Mr. Marchant, that had been prepared at the time the $1,000,000 loan by-law plan had been put forward by Mayor Herbert Anscomb.

It had been first, it was through accident, retorted His Worship, and not by design. In his own view the Dardanelles was of greater importance as a first measure, while other locations were fully in need of attention on their own merits.

His proposal, resumed Mr. Marchant, was that Pandora Avenue should be done as new work, apart from repair work such as wooden block replacing. It could not be done by local improvement, under which plan a disastrous volume of debt had been rolled up in the past, and had caused the reversal of some 3,000 parcels of land to the city. It could be done from revenue, he believed, and stated a surplus of $75,000 this year at the least might be anticipated.

He was unalterably opposed to borrowing. The pay-as-you-go plan had been designed to correct the severe financial strain borne by citizens in the years up to 1923. At that time the city had a public debt of some $19,000,000 and an overdraft at the bank that grew to $511,000. In the intervening years to date the debt had been reduced by $3,000,000, and the overdraft eliminated, said Mr. Marchant.

WORKABLE POLICY

Payment from revenue was a sound and workable policy, he averred.

Cragdarroch had been purchased at the cost of $35,000 from revenue. Oaklands School had been built at a cost of $18,000 from revenue. Royal Athletic Park had been acquired from revenue, and a volume of general street work had also been carried out from year to year under the same plan. The Pandora Avenue extension was a reasonable project to undertake, and the work, if begun in December, would help in unemployment relief this year, concluded Mr. Marchant.

Alderman Eugene S. Woodward seconded the Marchant motion, for purposes of discussion.

PLAN OPPOSED

Alderman J. L. Mara said he did not favor the Marchant proposal. There was no assurance of obtaining $39,000 or any surplus revenue. The pay-as-you-go plan was not a policy, but an expedient, he held, designed to meet a difficult time in the city's history now past. "What had been the plan of Alderman Marchant, when the council had pledged the credit of the city to the extent of $500,000 for the grain elevator?" Mr. Mara wanted to know. It was true the city might not be called on to pay its guarantee, but its credit had been pledged just the same. He could not see his way clear to supporting the proposal, concluded Mr. Mara.

A $2,000,000 PLEDGE

Alderman W. T. Straith, seconded by Alderman James Adam, moved that the Marchant plan be referred to the council of 1930.

"Pandora Avenue is not the only place needing attention," said Mr. Straith. "I agree that for a year or two any plan should follow the system, or the expedient if you like to call it that, of pay-as-you-go. This rule should hold until the financial indebtedness of the city is reduced. My objections to the ten-year plan by the loan by-law method is that it pledges the city's credit in advance to work that would cost almost $2,000,000, without regard to what we might have to meet in the next ten years. I don't think it would be wise to do that," said Mr. Straith.

Alderman Woodward proposed tabling the Marchant plan for one week, to ascertain what surplus, if any, the city might count upon this year.

STREET UNKNOWN

Mayor Anscomb left the chair at this point to speak on the question. No one could say if there would be a surplus, he stated.

"I haven't that knowledge, and I am not in a position to make a statement on conditions here," said Mr. Marchant, continued His Worship. "If there is any surplus the first place for it should be to go to the reduction of taxation next year. As far as Pandora Avenue is concerned, I am not so much in favor of seeing it done as Mr. Marchant, when it can be done."

The time would come when there would be required two outlets to that section of the city now filling up, but it could not be said that Pandora Avenue should be the first one to be put through, continued Mayor Anscomb. Much had been said about the pay-as-you-go plan, he went on, but he was not sure the council had voted in favor of it. Mr. Marchant willing to vote an increase in salary to the outside workers of the City Hall.

TAX REDUCTION

The alderman had favored laying concrete at Ogden Point by the by-law method, but not the laying of concrete on streets by the same means, charged His Worship. He would place himself on record as being unalterably opposed to the plan brought forward by Mr. Marchant. If there were any surplus it should go to tax reduction, concluded Mr. Mara.

Alderman John Worthington said he knew the history of Pandora Avenue intimately and averred its construction in permanent form would cost dearly. If there were any surplus it should go as a form of relief to the taxpayers, who had had a long and hard pull in former years, he said.

In reply Mr. Marchant said he had voted in favor of the industrial guarantee, but that they had so far not cost the city a two-cent stamp. It was not a question of tax reduction, he answered, for the rate was struck, and the taxes collected, and if a surplus accrued it should be used to the best advantage of the city as a whole. New work on streets was a necessity, and what he could be placed under way.

"I do not know anything more ruinous than borrowing, and looking to the future to pay it. It will take Great Britain sixty years to pay for what she borrowed in the last war. We have reduced our debt by three millions, and we can afford to do a certain amount of work, but we cannot afford to do it, and bring about the very conditions which drove us into the hole," concluded Mr. Marchant.

Alderman R. A. C. Dewar said simply that the city should continue its former policy of payment from revenue for necessary work done, and the taxes collected, and if a surplus accrued it should be used to the best advantage of the city as a whole. New work on streets was a necessity, and what he could be placed under way.

The Straith-Mara motion that the Marchant plan be referred to the council of 1930 was then put and carried. Mayor Herbert Anscomb, Aldermen James Adam, W. H. Cullen, R. C. Dewar, John Harvey, H. O. Litchfield, J. L. Mara, W. T. Straith and J. A. Worthington were counted in the affirmative. Aldermen William Marchant and E. S. Woodward opposed the two months' hoist, voting "no."

LOAN PLAN IN AIR

Mr. Woodward asked at once what had become of the loan by-law, the drafts of which had been introduced by His Worship. The council had the copies in their hands, but no action had been taken on the drafts, Mayor Anscomb replied.

Tentative drafts of suggested loan by-laws under which the city would be authorized to borrow up to $1,850,000 were laid before the council just before delegates left for the Union Convention at Harrison Hot Springs. Since then nothing has been heard of them, and no action has been taken on the issue, which the pay-as-you-go members of the council believe has been dropped for good.

SALES TAX IS TO BE REDUCED, FEDERAL PREMIER INTIMATES

As a result of that letter inquiries were made and Sir Henry finally went to Ottawa and became president of the C.N.R., said Premier King.

"If we had made a bad appointment we would have been blamed. So when we made a good appointment, as pretty nearly everybody now acknowledges, we should have that much of the credit," said Mr. King.

NEW SETTLERS

The policy of the Government with respect to immigration, Mr. King said, was to welcome above all immigration from the British Isles, but not to close the doors to people of other nations. It had been found the average cost to Canada of immigrants coming from Britain was $10.45 and of those coming from Europe 11 cents. This was the best-proof the Government was seeking most for British settlers. However, with all the resources of this country and all the broad lands Canada had a finer conception of her duty to the world than to keep out men from other countries who sought to improve their position and were ready to work hard to give to the betterment of themselves and their families and pay their own way.

Mr. King paid a tribute to Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration. "Mr. Forke," he said, "has administered his department with exceptional skill and wisdom."

Turning to the tariff, Mr. King said there was a difference between the Tory mind and the Liberal mind with regard to trade.

"To the Tory mind trade is warfare, border warfare. To the Liberal mind trade is exchange and is a good thing," he said.

After quoting from a report of a speech of Hon. R. B. Bennett, Federal Conservative leader, at Windsor, Ont., last June, Mr. King said: "Mr. Bennett has stated that out of our total exports of $1,363,000,000 during the past fiscal year, no less than $1,330,000,000 consisted of raw materials or unmanufactured products. If his implication is correct, the total value of Canadian exports of manufactured goods would be only $33,000,000."

"In the last fiscal year Canada exported manufactured goods to the value of $408,800,000, as will be seen by reference to the condensed preliminary report of the trade of Canada, 1929. During the same year Canada exported partly manufactured goods to the value of $109,400,000.

BENNETT'S "MENACE"

"Again, and again Mr. Bennett has referred to Canada being a dependent country," said Mr. King. "His use of the phrase, 'economic menace' is both curious and contradictory. When we sell to the United States certain of our commodities, Mr. Bennett says Canada is faced with an economic menace, because we are parting with our estate or selling our birthright. When the United States threatens to raise its tariff again, so that we are being shut out of United States markets, he says we are face to face with an economic menace. Finally, when we buy from the United States instead of purchasing at home we are again faced with an economic menace, because of the home market which is being invaded. If we buy from or sell to, or are prohibited from selling to the United States, the result is the same—Canada is faced with an economic menace. There is the appeal to fear, if you will."

AFTERNOON SPEECH

Premier King's message to his own constituents of Prince Albert yesterday was one of Canadian unity, a picture of peoples of many races and many religious beliefs living together without distrust or enmity. Canada was a country where the rights of the minorities were protected and those of the majorities were not abused. He spoke of the distrust and suspicion often found in European countries from which some in his audience had come.

No more distinctly Canadian setting could have been chosen for the speech he made yesterday afternoon. Some thirty-five miles from Prince Albert, out on the wind-swept prairie, without a town or even a village in sight, stands the Pleasantville Community Hall by the side of the road. It is much like a hundred other community halls that dot the prairies. There 250 farmers and their wives, their sons and daughters, sat down to lunch with the Premier and afterward to hear him speak.

Outside the building their automobiles, about seventy-five of them, and as high a ratio as would be found marked in any good city street in the east, gave indication of the prosperity of those within.

TOLD OF WORK

In the community hall Mr. King, as M.P. for Prince Albert, gave an account of his stewardship to the people who had sent him to Ottawa. He told them what he had done in foreign lands. He described in a vivid manner the signing of the Briand-Kellogg peace pact in which he participated, since he had visited the constituency. He carried the minds of his listeners from the little hall on the prairie to the French capital with all its splendor, where the flags of every nation of the world floated over their foreign affairs building on that important occasion. He visualized the work of the League of Nations in Geneva.

RACES REPRESENTED

Shelbrook is the town nearest to the Pleasantville Hall, and all the food for the luncheon was brought from there. The district around Shelbrook is largely Anglo-Saxon, but there were a scattering of representatives of a number of races in Europe present. Attached in most cases it was almost impossible to distinguish them. Three Doukhobor women, their heads covered with bright-colored shawls, added variety to the occasion. E. S. Clinch, member for Shelbrook in the Provincial House, welcomed the Premier Minister and said the only regret was that Mr. King could not visit his constituency more often.

ELECTION TACTICS

T. C. Davis, former Attorney-General of Saskatchewan, speaking before the Prime Minister, condemned tactics he described as used to defeat the Gardiner Government in the recent provincial election. These tactics, he said, were not the tactics of a true Canadian and any party which resorted to such methods would not get very far, said Premier King. "If you do nothing else," he urged, "try to put down this kind of thing." The teachings of Liberalism were to be moderate, charitable and kindly to people of different races and religions. It was not the first time the Liberal Party had had to meet appeals to race and religion, he said.

RAILSTON SPEAKS

Hon. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defence, brought the greetings from the province of Nova Scotia. He told of the progress being made in his province and his confidence that the war would continue to lend its cooperation in enabling the Maritimes to solve the problems which still remained.

"This community hall," Col. Ralston said, "is not much different from those to be found in my province. To your credit I can say that you look like the people of Nova Scotia. I am here to demonstrate to you the oneness of Canada."

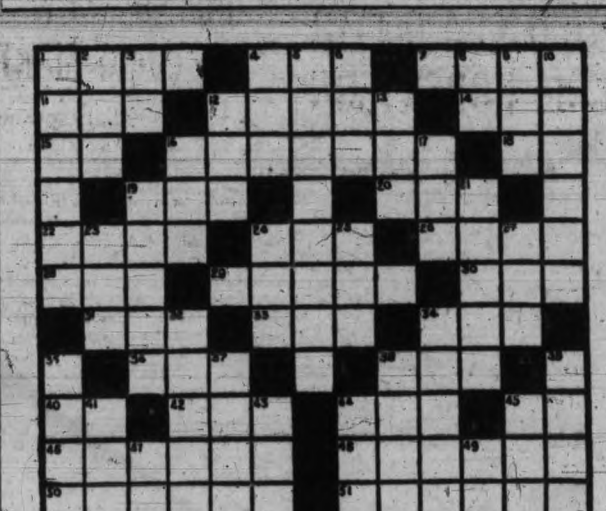

Mr. W. Sutherland presided and introduced a resolution of confidence in Mr. King, which was carried unanimously.

Yesterday was such a day as any province might desire, his constituency, the Premier meeting deputations and hearing of the needs of their communities, and shaking hands with his people.

At Shelbrook the school children of the town were formed up in the main street and sang "O Canada." Mr. King and Col. Ralston addressed the boys and girls.

Contentment to Blind Lies In Full Employment

Sound Workmanship and Finish of Their Products Justify Public Confidence and Demand.

As a cardinal principle in all of its relief measure designed for the amelioration of the blind, the Canadian National Institute for the Blind has recognized the vital necessity of the blind to work, not only to physical strength and health as far as possible, but the need for the suitable employment of their mental energies as well, knowing that in legitimate, useful and gainful work, lies their main channel of escape from brooding discontent, and the inevitable deterioration that follows in its wake.

The training, physical and mental, of the infant blind, through the generous zeal of the Government in establishing and maintaining splendid schools throughout the Dominion for that purpose, is exceptionally well taken care of.

It is the man and woman, bereft of sight in adult years, whether as returned and blinded soldiers, whether from devastating accident, or illness, who are the real problem, and who are the ones who are most in need of that help, and who are, for the time being, helpless and utterly bewildered.

In the face of the almost insurmountable difficulties and obstacles that are initially overcome, the achievement of these blind people, when they have been trained for some special work, is all but unbelievable. Not only the things they do—but the persons they have become—the gentleness, the cheerfulness, the dauntless courage they manifest, the renewed ambition, the power of application they bring to bear in their attempts at adjustment—many, long after midnight, make them the object, not of pity, but the highest admiration and respect.

In the broom factory operated in Vancouver for the benefit of all the blind of British Columbia, cheerful and the discussions he had here on migration and trade developments, adding as a reference to the wheat situation that he hoped soon to meet representatives of the Canadian Wheat Board.

NO MAGIC CURE
The Minister pressed home the point that there was no magic cure for unemployment. The Conservatives cheered him when he declared the solution of the problem would only be hindered by silly and extravagant expenditures.

Mr. Thomas brought a rush to the House with his outspoken admission that in the Canadian people there is no hope whatever of work for thousands and hundreds of thousands of our fellow-men, no matter what is done.

"I have no hesitation in saying that it is improving nevertheless," Mr. Thomas added. "Prospects are better than they were, but it is only by taking a long view that we can make a permanent contribution to the solution of the unemployment problem."

Mr. Thomas said he had gone to Canada because he knew there was a real sentiment and real anxiety to help in so far as the Canadian people were concerned, and also because apart from the question of sentiment Britain was entitled to consideration. Britain was Canada's best customer for her natural products.

one should try to reverse this, and he had gone to the Dominion deliberately with that in view.

MUST NOT BE MIXED
Mr. Thomas did not go to Canada to discuss migration, though the matter was finally discussed with the Canadian Government. It was a profound mistake to mix migration with the question of unemployment in Britain, he declared.

"But while we have no right to try and force people to go to Canada or elsewhere, we have no right to prevent them going," he said. "Yet $6,000 people in this country had their names down on the list for three years, waiting for a chance to go to the Dominions."

COTTON TARIFF
Mr. Thomas then came to the point of importance to the great Lancashire textile trade. Canadian regulations require that goods, to gain the Empire preference, must be of fifty per cent Empire manufacture and materials. Obviously this quota could not be established on cotton goods in view of the fact that the raw material was bought outside the Empire. Mr. Thomas said he had officially discussed the matter in Canada, and had the strongest grounds for hoping the difficulties would be removed.

WHEAT AND COAL
Mr. Thomas described the wheat shipping situation in Canada, which he hoped was abnormal. If Britain was going to send British goods to Canada, he hoped there would be regular return cargoes, otherwise the cost of steel and coal from Britain to the Dominion would naturally be affected. So far as coal and steel were concerned, what could be done in Canada could be done in other places.

LLOYD GEORGE SPEAKS
Right Hon. David Lloyd George, Liberal leader, declared the Thomas schemes contained no provision for relief in the coming black winter of unemployment. The expenditures indicated would be spread over an indefinite number of years. Instead of being held, the schemes were "timid, pusillanimous and unintelligent," he said.

It seemed to him incredible, Mr. Lloyd George added, that with most of the other Cabinet Ministers away and his schemes not yet matured, Mr. Thomas should go to Canada and leave his main work to somebody else. He suggested an expert commission should be sent to Canada as was done in the case of South Africa.

BID FOR MARKETS
James Maxton, leader of the left wing of the Labor Party, also criticized Mr. Thomas' mission to Canada. He quoted figures to show Canada's own industrial development and her bid for world markets. With outstretched arms and bitter tones he attacked the Tory philosophy of capitalism which he said he found in Mr. Thomas' speech.

"I listened to Mr. Thomas with very great disgust," he said. "I hope there are no more unhappy men than I am to-day."

By any test he could apply he de-

Boy Quit Shoemaking to Join Fishing Boats
"Tap, tap, tap," John Glover, a New England lad, was making shoes. He didn't like making shoes, but his father had sent him to the shoemaking trade. John Glover, born 197 years ago to-day, grew up, he became the owner, not only of a fishing boat, but of a fleet of merchant vessels, and was among the first to start the shipping business on the American continent.

The tapping ceased, as John looked out of the window. Then the shoemaker came in, caught John dreaming again, and ordered that thereafter he must work with his back to the window.

FRESH-KILLED GOBBLEERS NOW ON LOCAL MART

Supply in For Thanksgiving Day; Price of Tomatoes Goes Up

Turkeys, the chief dish for Thanksgiving dinners, are now on the wholesale market and should find a ready sale among retail merchants of the city. The gobblers are fresh killed and plump. Although frozen turkeys have been stocked by the wholesalers during the year, the spring brood is just beginning to come in, and is a great improvement over the stocked fowl.

On the fruit market tomatoes rose to a higher level on the wholesale stalls today. They are now selling at $2.50 a rate for field varieties and from $3.50 to $4 for house ones. The increase in price is largely due to the shipment of a large quantity of local produce to the coast.

GUY FAWKES IS RECALLED AT LUNCHEON

Story of Gunpowder Plot Is Retold to Kiwanis Club By B. C. Nicholas

C. Elwood Watkins Announces Start of Construction on Scout Building

The story of Guy Fawkes and his gunpowder plot of over 300 years ago was humorously retold at the Kiwanis Club luncheon in the Empress Hotel to-day by B.C. Nicholas, who traced the connection between the days of James I of England and the British character of Canada.

To-day was the anniversary of this sinister and novel attempt to rid England of its sovereign, the king, the speaker said. He recalled that Fawkes was a soldier of fortune who had gained a reputation to war on the continent. He was a man of adventure and considerably a fanatic. He fell in with the conspirators who planned to blow up the Houses of Parliament.

The history of the autocratic James I and his attempts to impress upon the people of England his sense of divine right was retraced by Mr. Nicholas who then described how the conspirators put gunpowder and faggots in the cellar of the Parliament Buildings, of their subsequent discovery, the torturing of Guy Fawkes and the final execution of all the conspirators.

TODAY'S GRAIN MARKETS

(By Branson, Brown & Co. Limited)
Winnipeg, Nov. 5.—Wheat: The wheat market was very weak again today with prices on the extreme break sinking to 3 1/2 to 4 1/2 under the close last night. Scattered liquidation was going on through the session and some important lines of stale long wheat was thrown overboard. On the break there was some pretty good buying by seaboard houses which was credited to export business and the market made a fair recovery from the mid session low points but outside this the support was not important and the full upturns were difficult to hold.

Chicago was barely as weak as Winnipeg but made the low marks in the late trade despite the fact that a good export business was reported in American hard wheat and from the gulf. The local cash wheat market was again very dull with not much feature. Spread generally were unchanged and offerings very light.

Argentine news continues much mixed, some advices depicting a poor outlook while others say there has been improvement lately with better weather. Trade sentiment is somewhat bearish due largely to the disappointing foreign demand and export bids.

Coarse grains: These markets like wheat had a drastic cleaning out today and prices suffered severe declines. Liquidation was reported with the demand very poor to-day for everything and in addition there was considerable selling of oats in this market against big advances in Chicago. There was nothing for shipment and no business was reported. In the cash market offerings were very light and all spreads were unchanged.

Flax: Market was also sharply lower in sympathy with the weakness in the general grain list. Demand continues very light and there was little of feature going on.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Wheat: Further declines were registered in wheat today, the market being affected by further long liquidation and local pressure was also heavy at times. The commission house absorption was heavy at times, there being particularly active buying of March wheat early.

Short covering on the declines gave the market a fair rally from the low points. Receipts were small here and at other points and as well as in Canada with Canadian country marketings yesterday 882,000 bushels and 4,185,000 bushels a year. Foreign markets were heavy, Liverpool being 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 down.

Liverpool reported a slow demand for actual wheat with large stocks. Cash bases was about half a cent higher. There was a charter for 70,000 bushels of Buffalo. Export sales of 1,500,000 bushels reported mainly hard winter. Argentine receipts were about a staff.

Corn: Worked sharply lower with weakness in wheat favorable weather and liquidation factors. Vintners receipts are small at the present time with a firm cash market, the prospect for more liberal movement in the near future with limited storage room available checks buying.

The cash demand was fair, with sales of 127,000 bushels and country sales extremely light. The weather was fine over the belt. Cash corn was unchanged to one cent up.

R. F. Clark & Company for a period of two years. He has now returned to the Royal Financial Corporation Limited as Ontario representative with headquarters in Toronto.

With Mr. Clarke in Toronto, the Royal Financial Corporation extends its activities to Eastern Canada, putting another link in its chain now extending from the eastern financial section, right through to Victoria. Credit is due the company as being the first western company to establish an exclusive high-grade investment securities, with head office in Vancouver, for extending its operations right through to Eastern Canada.

The prospect of the Royal Financial Corporation since incorporation has not been phenomenal but has been a very healthy growth. The company was incorporated under the laws of British Columbia, in May, 1910, with head office in Vancouver, and has since that time been steadily growing and has now a representative in Toronto.

The company has underwritten a number of very large issues of government and municipal securities, together with a number of very successful industrial issues, which in the aggregate amount to over $10,000,000. It has also been active in direct underwritings made by the Royal Financial Corporation Limited and does not lack participation in various large syndicates.

The company has also fostered several other industries and amalgamations of industrial concerns and the result of this financing has so far justified the faith put in the various companies and their management. It is therefore gratifying to note that every issue outstanding, without exception, is underwritten by the Royal Financial Corporation in paying its interest and principal when due.

SAVES VOLUME PROPS LOWER VANCOUVER

Vancouver, Nov. 5.—(Miller, Court Leased Wire)—Sales volume in the mines was smaller here to-day, but there was a heavy trade in the oils. Significant fact in connection with the mines list to-day is the fact that they turned dull, rather than breaking out into voluminous liquidation, when Toronto showed itself again under bear control. This is taken as further proof that the mines issues here are well rounded. Prices which did not hold all of their gains of the last few days, eased only fractionally on scattered sales.

Home Oil sold under 13.00. This was a direct result of the weak Toronto market, but no heavy liquidation in the oils resulted. Although the sales list was lighter than it has been for many days, it was not so strong ground that if the money situation across Canada would brighten itself and the big market give it a chance, the local market would show some real bullish action. As it is, however, it may have to mill through a period of fifteen years and dips, until the wheat "crop" is sold, or something else eases up, so that it can get away.

Average in the mining group are being maintained to a great extent than in the oils, profit-taking has been sufficiently great to halt the upward movement. Miller, Court and Co. are today "Trading for the next few days may be marked by irregularity because of continued weakness in eastern markets."

WHITNEY LETTER

(By Branson, Brown & Co. Limited)

New York, Nov. 5.—Whitney of the Wall Street Financial Bureau says today:

PERIOD OF STABILIZATION

"I believe that Monday's opening clearly showed up that, while the market has recently been accorded the greatest mass support in history when it needed it, there is no idea of reinstating the type of speculation which, by its excesses of last August, brought on the recent break. Besides, which it is plainly apparent that a wholesale ballyhoo such as the newspapers almost without exception engaged in over the day and half holiday, is not going to put prices up."

"What this market needs at the present time more than anything else is a stabilizing period, if for no other reason than that which is thoroughly recognized by the country's leading banking groups, the reason being that there is practically the same danger in wide swings as there is in an open break, simply because the wide swings can produce the same net result as a break in the form of further losses on the part of those who persist in an attempt to catch the swings. In addition to this it is felt that the only way the market is going to heal its innumerable sore spots is by giving it a rest cure via relatively narrow fluctuations for a four to six week period."

"While it is practically impossible to say at this time whether this stabilization will be at higher or lower prices than those prevailing, it is clearly indicated that every effort will be made to accomplish this purpose not far away from present prices, and that when this period is definitely established that you will see one tendency become very clearly defined. This being an adjustment of prices of individual issues to their time-honored earnings and value standards."

"This simply means that a lot of stocks are going to continue to sell materially below the artificial levels created in the early part of the year. At the same time it means that any number of other issues which have been depressed by the recent breaks are too cheap in basis of demonstrated earnings, not of 1929, but of a period of years during which they have registered accumulative step up of earnings and conservation of cash resources. Outside of the day to day trading aspect, therefore, the outlook is far from hopeless as it will enable us to consider the outlook for a given issue on the basis of its intrinsic value and where it is entitled to sell, and not from the somewhat superficial attitude which has so often been made necessary in at months, by the knowledge that its price was going to be governed forty per cent from what it was worth, and sixty per cent from what the pool in it was going to do with it, whether it was worth it or not."

"I continue of the belief that issues such as National Biscuit, Matheson Alkali, U.S. Rubber, Cons. Gas and Public Service of New Jersey represents intrinsic values capable of being reflected in higher market prices to which classification should be added the list of oils and the list of rails previously pointed out."

Cities Service Holders Here Are Assured

Reassurance for holders here of Cities Service stocks was received from New York today by Chris. Hall & Co. in a telegramic message from G. N. Marshall of the firm, who has been there for the last three days investigating conditions, following the big market break.

"Few hours spent with statistical department conclusively proves Cities Service has never sold at more than fifty per cent of its intrinsic value," Mr. Marshall telegraphed. "The apparent complicated financial interweaving is really not so and its admirably conservative but far-sighted policy controls the whole situation. Earnings are increasing with rapidly which renders the stock probably the best investment available."

CANADIAN GRAIN WILL TAKE LEAD, SAYS MINISTER

Aminicola, Sask., Nov. 5.—Canadian grain will rapidly regain its former position of high eminence in the markets of the world.

This was the opinion expressed here last night in the course of a public address by Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture of Canada.

He discussed phases of agricultural development and actions of his department and the Federal Government generally in the effort to bring to the people of Canada a greater measure of prosperity.

Mr. Motherwell pointed out that because of anti-mixing legislation passed by the Federal Parliament as a result of the recommendations of the Saskatchewan Grain Inquiry Commission, the better seed facilities and supply and the educational effect of the World Grain Congress to be held in Regina in 1932, he felt Canadian grain would in the near future again take its premier place in the markets of the world.

ELECTION TO-DAY IN VIRGINIA SOUTHERN TEST

NEW YORK CONTEST

New York City, Mayor James J. Walker's candidacy for re-election on the Democratic ticket was opposed by Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia, Republican; Norman Thomas, Socialist; and Richard E. Enright, former police commissioner, running under the sponsorship of the Square Deal Party.

In addition to this and the Boston contest there were mayoralty elections in cities of Michigan, Indiana, Kansas and Ohio.

In Kentucky the Republican Party sought to gain control of the Legislature.

State-wide elections were also being held in Ohio, Illinois and Pennsylvania.

"I continue of the belief that issues such as National Biscuit, Matheson Alkali, U.S. Rubber, Cons. UTILITIES GREATEST SUFFERERS; DOW FIGURES INDICATE NEXT MOVES ON MARKET

New York, Nov. 5. (B.C. Bond)—Utility stocks have been the greatest sufferers from the standpoint of price collapse, the prices having been more than halved, indicated by the Standard-Statistics weighted index of twenty prominent issues. This index has dropped off 166 points from the September high, while the industrial average has declined 90 points, equivalent to about 36 per cent of the top.

This is an unprecedented shrinkage in market values. Whereas in September, average prices of utilities, as indicated by Standard Statistics index, were about 100 points above the industrials, this disparity has been ironed out, with utilities back to approximately the same level as the industrials.

UNSATISFACTORY CONDITIONS FORECAST

New York, Nov. 5.—The Wall Street Journal says editorially:

"It is all hanging in the air, to pretend that the market decline will have an effect on general business, and mere affectation to believe elsewhere, which will be uncovered in due course."

So far as the market is concerned, there seems tolerably good reason to hope that the untoward liquidation is over, and that the market for stocks will take on a more orderly and even humdrum character from now forward.

SLOWER LIQUIDATION FROM NOW ON

This does not mean, on the usual readings of the Dow Jones averages, that the low figures of the industrials and the railroads have been seen. In days of more measurable prices, when Dow formulated his theory of the averages, there would be a rally of about forty per cent from the panic low, followed by the liquidation of stock for people who had been helped over the crisis.

"Pressure of this sort caused a much slower decline, but where the major movement had turned to the down side, there were still lower prices before any bull market would start again."

TURN TO GOVERNMENT BONDS

New York, Nov. 5.—"After a wild night you have seen a man push away his breakfast," says Arthur Brisbane in The New York American, to-day. "He doesn't feel like eating, although it is a good breakfast. That's the way with stock values after a wild two years."

"Big buying orders" widely advertised and expected did not appear in Wall Street yesterday. But selling orders did appear, prices were weak, with sales about 6,000,000 shares, government bonds rose sharply. Some, turned suddenly wise, decided that the country is all right, but stock gambling all wrong."

SHORT SESSIONS REST OF WEEK

New York, Nov. 5.—Dow Jones average of thirty industrials at the close of the market Monday stood at 257.66, 15.83 points for the day; and for twenty rails at 156.22, off 3.60 points for the day.

Stock market on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday will be open only from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., and it will be closed all day Saturday.

The market here was closed to-day for the New York elections.

SALE ON ALL GOOD RALLIES

New York, Nov. 5.—It ought to be pretty well definitely established now that this is a bear market.

Col. Leonard P. Ayres, the economist, a few weeks ago in a formal statement from the Cleveland Trust Company, predicted it is a "creeping bear market." It was a bear market, all right, but instead of "creeping" it became a bounding bear. The World points out in a special editorial.

The present generation of traders scarcely knows what a bear market means. They have been trained on a great bull market for several years, with air pockets from time to time that were soon overcome.

If the market has set a major reversal and is a bear, it means that stocks are a sale on all good rallies for some time to come, just as they have been a buy on all dips for the last few years. If past history counts for anything, the bear movement will last much longer than people generally now believe possible. After such a severe break, the market is not going right up again and there will be lots of time to buy stocks—also, there will be opportunities on which to sell. There will be much bad news between now and next spring.

STILL BETTER BARGAINS COMING

"In view of this unprecedented situation," It is time for plain speaking," The Wall Street Mirror says to-day in its advice to clients. "Stocks should be bought on the dips and not on the rallies. Take your time about buying. Buy stocks with stable earnings, good yield and prospects, rather than on quotations."

"Many stocks were pushed too high in the bull movement of the summer. Just because these stocks are selling down to low points is no reason to look on them as cheap. When this phase of the market has passed there will be more bargains than are now in sight."

MOTOR INDUSTRY NOT AT LOW EVEN YET

Dealing with the motor stocks, E. A. Pierce & Company to-day issued the following:

"The reduction in car output will necessarily affect the last quarter earnings of many companies, but, on the other hand, the reduced production will rapidly restore normal conditions in the industry and will pave the way for quantity production in the early part of 1930."

While the industry does not appear to have reached its low point on the move, we think motor stocks have anticipated the situation by several months and are dragging bottom."

"The news from the industry during the next three or four months is not likely to stir up much enthusiasm for the motor shares. Hence trading opportunities in these issues will be somewhat limited. General Motors, Hudson, Nash, Chrysler and Studebaker are earning their dividend requirements by large margins and are in strong financial positions and have already proved their ability to weather any storm through which the industry may have to pass."

MONTH MAY PASS BEFORE McALPINE EXPLORERS COME FROM THE ARCTIC REGION

Depleted fuel supplies forced the planes to land near McMurdo, where a small party of the expedition was waiting. The message stated.

Actually the report has not yet reached Hudson's Bay Company headquarters in full as yet, but at Ottawa the Federal radio branch picked up a portion of the message as broadcast from Churchill, on Hudson Bay, and forwarded it to Winnipeg. Meanwhile the entire station was kept busy with communications in the north.

WANDERERS REST

To-day the explorers rested at Cambridge Bay, Victoria Island, opposite Bathurst Inlet. It was for Bathurst Inlet they set out on September 8 aboard their two cabin planes from Baker Lake, 300 miles west of Hudson Bay. Weary but happy, gaunt but healthy, the eight refugees to-day were building up wasted sinews. Col. McAlpine, party leader, had lost forty of his 200 pounds.

PLANES AT ISLAND

Drawn up on the ice-caked shore of Melbourne Island to-day were the two planes discarded by the McAlpine mineral explorers in their dash for life. With their water-pousses rendered useless by the ice of the Arctic, the seaplanes are destined to remain moored on the shore at least until skis are brought by salvage planes, or perhaps much longer.

McLobbe Island is far off the course the fliers had intended to follow to Bathurst Inlet.

FOOD RATIONED

It was in September, eight weeks ago, before snow and ice came to trouble the explorers. The eight explorers, since then the men had rationed their food and waited calmly for rescue. Finally they were picked up by Eskimos and conveyed to the settlement at Cambridge Bay.

It is a possibility the McAlpine party's planes, though undamaged, will remain on the beach at Melbourne Island until next summer. They will not be moved without skis and fuel. While fuel could easily be carried to the island, the only skis within a radius of 1,000 miles are fitted to the four planes stationed at Bathurst Inlet, which empties into Bathurst Bay.

PLANES TO GO

Probably three, and maybe all, of the search quartette of planes will hop off from Bathurst north to bring out Col. McAlpine and his men.

Before the rescuers reach Winnipeg or possibly Edmonton, it will be late November or early December. News is now being rushed by dogteam south over sixty miles of rough ice to Bathurst Inlet, where the radio station at Bathurst Inlet, Capt. G. S. Blanchard, who directed search operations by air, is with Polts Roy Brown, William Spence, Arthur Cruikshank and H. Hollick-Kenyon at Bathurst.

Toronto, Nov. 5.—Officials of the Dominion Explorers Limited here to-day were able to reconstruct the adventures of the miniature expedition party of eight men lost for two months in Canada's northland from the brief dispatches received here yesterday and last night from the group, headed by Colonel C. D. McAlpine, now safe at Cambridge Bay, Victoria Island.

As described by them, the adventures of the party may be summarized as follows:

The party, which started from Winnipeg, left Baker Lake, 300 miles west of Hudson Bay, September 8 for Bathurst Inlet, on the Arctic shore.

STOPPED AT LAKE

"The same night a half of the expedition's two planes was made at Baker Lake, halfway point on the projected 600-mile journey. At Baker Lake the party waited for more than a day for the weather to clear and hopped off again September 10."

"Deceived by the monotony of the fog enshrouded Barren lands and beset by constant failure of their compasses, the two pilots flew far off their course, far to the north of their intended route."

"As the broad open waters of the Arctic appeared beneath them through the haze the fliers realized they were lost."

water and with the greatest effort the pontoons-equipped planes were propelled ashore and pulled up on the sandy beach of Melbourne Island, in Dease Strait, between Victoria Island and the mainland.

"That night the explorers erected a rude shelter about their planes, built a fire on the beach and ate their first meal in the wilderness."

CANNED FOOD

"It was a meal of canned and dried food carried aboard the planes and such meals were to be the lot of the marooned men for many days, following."

"The eight were lulled to sleep that night by the waves which lapped the Arctic shore upon which they slept. A fitful sleep it was, but welcome after the tiring adventures of the day."

"Ways down of September 11 the men were up and about the task of finding a way back to civilization. For days, it seems, they scouted for miles in all directions, but found not a sign of human habitation."

"Attracted by their beach fire, which burned night and day, three wandering Eskimos, nomads of the north, came at length upon the party and the lost explorers."

In the pidgin English of the Arctic people, the white men and the copper-skinned natives talked long that night. The bewildered Eskimos were amazed at finding someone who might direct them out of the bewildering north."

"The Eskimos were surprised to see white men so far off the beaten path and the two stranded planes with curiosity."

"An understanding was reached and the Eskimos agreed to lead the beleaguered men."

FAR NORTH OF GOAL

"McAlpine and his men, they learned from the natives, had come down at a point west of the mouth of the Ellice River and more than 150 miles north of their destination. They apparently had mistaken the Ellice for the Western River and had followed it northward to the ocean."

"Along the shore of Melbourne Island and to a point opposite Cambridge Bay, the explorers were taken by their guides."

"Only such food as they would absolutely need was removed from the planes and carried in packbags on the overland journey."

For fifty miles across Dease Strait the little party trudged its way over hummocks of ice, making but a few miles each day.

"Footsore and exhausted the weary party reached the Hudson's Bay Company post at Cambridge Bay on Sunday last."

SENDS MESSAGE TO WIFE

Collingwood, Ont., Nov. 5.—Mrs. Stanley R. McMillan, wife of an Edmonton pilot of the McAlpine party of the Dominion Explorers Limited, has received the following telegram from her husband:

"Via St. Fort James to Churchill—'Am OK at Cambridge Bay. Expect to get out soon.'"

warmth of the reception and the size of the donation.

A lad yesterday called at headquarters, 1203 Broad Street, selling magazines in connection with a prize contest. He made a sale but his dime went into the general fund.

A man badly crippled, one eye sightless and the other damaged was also among those who called into the office with a donation, telling the office staff that he appreciated the cause and was willing to help the worthy cause.

EAGER TO WORK

In very few instances where canvassers have had an opportunity of explaining the cause have they been so much interested in the work of the institute in helping the blind to become self-supporting.

The sightless citizens, they point out, are eager for training which will enable them to take their place in industry. And on the other side of the picture they point out the different views on the question of whether a blind person has daily tasks to perform instead of sitting alone, idle, in a world of darkness, accentuating a thousand fold his tragic disability.

WALL STREET RUM PARTY IS SENSATE TOPIC

Brookhart related that when he arrived at the hotel meeting place the first person he saw was Otto Kahn. "It did not occur to me he was much of a friend of Norris and La Follette," he continued, "but I went on."

By Anna Austin, author of "The Black Pigeon," "Rival Whores," etc.

"I told her it'd be up Monday, and up Monday it'll be," Dusty Rhodes answered with a weak violence. "Old fool! Threaten! To have me arrested for 'misappropriation' funds! Huh! Old fool!"

It was a relief to Dundee to see Norma's slender body weaving through the crowded dining-room toward him. "Mrs. Hogarth doesn't like to have visitors too soon after her meals," she confided, with a delicious air of intimacy. "I'm sure about 8 o'clock will be all right. You'll be nice to her, won't you, Mr. Dundee? Not—laugh at her, even to yourself? She's really a darling, even if she has got queer ideas about—about some of us."

CHAPTER IV

It was nearly 8:30 that fateful Saturday evening when Dundee, escorted by Norma Paige, arrived at the closed door of Mrs. Emma Hogarth's room on the second floor of the Rhodes House. Just as Norma lifted a hand to knock, a throaty voice with a peculiar trill in it could be heard distinctly: "Emma, you're an old fool!"

The words were followed by a loud, hair-raising laugh.

"That Cap'n again—the parrot, you know," Norma whispered, smiling. She knocked, and two voices answered her almost simultaneously: "Who is it?" It was hard for Dundee to distinguish between the two speakers, woman and bird.

"It's Norma, Mrs. Hogarth," the girl called.

There was the sound of a vast grunt or groan, as if a tremendous body was lifting itself slowly. Then came the thudding taps of cane upon the thin summer rug.

"She always keeps her door locked, and asks who it is before she will admit anyone," Norma whispered. "Poor dear! It must be terrible to be old and nearly helpless and to be suspicious of everyone, because you have a little money hidden away."

A key turned in the lock, and Norma Paige and Bonnie Dundee entered the room.

It was about ten minutes to eleven when Dundee emerged from that room, alone. He hesitated outside the closed door for a moment, in indecision, and was aware that the key was being turned after him. A peculiar old woman, but not "queer."

he was sure of that. But he had a message to deliver. Mrs. Hogarth had told him the location of all his fellow-boarders' rooms. Here was the centre front room, with a single large window looking out upon the upstairs porch. On the east, in a corner room, lived Cora Barker. On the west, also in a corner room, with one window opening upon the front upstairs porch, lived Bert Magnus and Walter Styles, the men's bath being next to Styles' room.

On the east side of the hall, with windows opening upon the side upstairs porch, lived Bert Magnus and Walter Styles, the men's bath being next to Styles' room.

The floor was very quiet, except for the steady, slow tapping of a typewriter. His message in mind, Bonnie Dundee stepped quietly to Bert Magnus' room and knocked.

"Who is it?" The answer was decidedly irritable.

"Dundee, Magnus. I have a message for you."

There was the sound of a chair scraping, then footsteps, followed by the turning of a key in a lock. Dundee grinned. A nice, trustful house, this.

As if answering the unspoken thought, Bert Magnus, appearing in the doorway in shirt sleeves, explained, with an obvious effort at cordiality:

"Have to keep my door locked or I'd never get any work done. You know what a boarding house is like—no privacy. Won't you come in?"

Dundee glanced about the small room as Magnus retreated to permit him to enter. A large, old-fashioned roll-top desk, with an ancient typewriter, beside which lay sheets of yellow paper, testified to the fact that Magnus was indeed busy.

"Thanks, no. I see you're busy. Hope the story is going all right," Dundee answered cheerfully. "I shouldn't have interrupted, but Mrs. Hogarth asked me to tell you that she'd like to meet you. She seems to be very much interested in your work."

Down the west side of the hall, in the order named, lived Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Sharp, and Norma Paige, the women's bath being at the end of the hall next to Norma's room. On the east side of the hall, with windows opening upon the side upstairs porch, lived Bert Magnus and Walter Styles, the men's bath being next to Styles' room.

The floor was very quiet, except for the steady, slow tapping of a typewriter. His message in mind, Bonnie Dundee stepped quietly to Bert Magnus' room and knocked.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

—By AHERN

Now wait a minute—getting this trunk up into the attic requires more than physical effort! As a scientific engineer of note, I will figure a way to determine the center of gravity and thereby distribute the trunk's weight, so that the ratio of lifting leverage will not unduly tax our power and cause us to waste extra strength!

Yeh, I see, 'trivin' to figure some way so that I'll be th' brawn of this job an' you'll be th' brain! Grab th' trunk by its bottom corners an' lift it high enough so it'll clear your bay window—come in from th' screen porch you had half of your equator on top of th' trunk!

Ha! Ha! laughed Uncle Wiggly and as he picked up the red rubber toy it seemed to wink one eye at him as he put it back on the mantel. Then the rabbit gentleman went back to bed and had pleasant dreams until morning.

And if the rubber coat will let the umbrellas stand on its ribs to make the snow shovel smile, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggly's jumping race.

Nine tables competed for honors in the second of the series of military five hundred tournaments held in the Temperance Hall on Saturday evening under the auspices of the South Saanich Women's Institute.

Table No. 9 with 26 discs captured first prize, the players being Mrs. Glidden, Mrs. F. Mitchell, Messrs. P. Tanner and T. Oxley. Two tables tied for second honors. After a play-off table No. 2 was successful, the players being Miss Alice Syman, Miss N. Syman and Messrs. H. Lawrie and R. Mitchell. Hostesses for the evening were Mes-

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggly's Night Surprise

Copyright, 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate

(By HOWARD R. GARIS)

When Uncle Wiggly brought home to his hollow stump bungalow one day a red, bouncing ball, with a jolly, laughing face painted on it, there was much fun for the bunny children. "Ooh, a lovely ball!" cried Baby Bunt, a little orphan rabbit living with Uncle Wiggly. "Whose is it?" "Whoever catches the ball after I bounce it may call it theirs," spoke Mr. Longears.

He threw the ball on the floor, just as he had once bounced it the time it banded the Fox on the nose. "Bing!" went the ball, and up it bounced almost to the ceiling. "It's coming down in my paw!" cried Jingle, a little girl bunny. "No, in mine," shouted her sister Jangle.

They both reached for the red-rubber ball with the jolly, laughing face. It struck on the tips of Jingle's paws, and softly landed on Baby Bunt's head.

"Ooo la la!" laughed Bunt, and she made a grab for the ball. "I'll get it!" cried Buster, a boy rabbit. "No, it's mine!" yelled his brother Duster.

And there was such a mad scramble for the ball, which kept on bouncing up and down, that in the end no one got it, and the ball rolled into a corner of the room where it blinked its painted eyes. At least it seemed to be blinking, though perhaps it was just the flicker of sunshine playing on it.

And the red lips of the ball seemed to be saying: "Go on! Bounce me again!" "But whose ball is it, Daddie?" asked Baby Bunt. "Nobody caught it!" shouted Custer. "So bounce it again, Daddie, and we'll try once more."

Again Uncle Wiggly bounced—the red ball, this time higher than before, so that it touched the ceiling. But when it came down there was such a wild scramble among the bunny children that again no one got it and the ball landed right on top of the head of Nurse Jane Fussy Wuzzy and then rolled down into her apron pocket.

"My goodness!" squeaked the muskrat lady.

"I guess it's Nurse Jane's ball," said Mr. Longears. "My goodness!" squeaked the muskrat lady housekeeper. "I haven't time to play ball! Here! Let the children take turns with it."

"I guess that's the best way," Uncle Wiggly agreed. "We'll go by their names according to the letters of the alphabet. We'll begin with A and end with Z." So the first rabbit child to play with the bouncing ball was Abbie and the last was Zebbie, one being a boy and one a girl, so everything was even. And between them came Baby Bunt and Buster and Custer and Jingle and Jangle and all the others.

Well, the bouncing ball made a great deal of fun in Uncle Wiggly's bungalow and he was glad he had bought it in the toy store kept by the nice, old pussy cat.

Came evening, when the bunny rabbit children must go to bed, and Zebbie, who played the bouncing ball last, laid it on the mantel for the night. But all of a sudden the ball rolled off, hit the floor and went on bouncing all by itself.

"Oh, look, Daddie!" cried Jingle. "That ball loves to bounce so much it won't stay still!"

"It's a jolly good ball," Uncle Wiggly said. "But it must have a rest." So he put it back on the mantel and laid some sticks around it so that the red rubber toy wouldn't roll off. Then Uncle Wiggly went to bed.

But in the middle of the night he had a surprise. Downstairs he heard a queer tapping noise and he sat up in bed to listen.

"It sounds as if some one were walking upstairs," whispered Mr. Longears. "Better go down, Wiggly, and look. It may be the Fox coming up."

Uncle Wiggly was brave, so he went downstairs and in the dining-room, what do you suppose he saw? Why, yes, the Fox was there, having sneaked in the window to get a piece of cheese pie. But the rubber ball rolled off the mantel, in spite of the sticks, and falling to the floor, began bouncing up and down so fast, that before the Fox could grab the cheese pie and jump out of the window, the ball banged him on his nose again. And once more he ran away yelling: "Woezie ow! Oh my nose! My nose!"

Ha! Ha! laughed Uncle Wiggly and as he picked up the red rubber toy it seemed to wink one eye at him as he put it back on the mantel. Then the rabbit gentleman went back to bed and had pleasant dreams until morning.

And if the rubber coat will let the umbrellas stand on its ribs to make the snow shovel smile, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggly's jumping race.

OPEN SCHOOL AT ALERT BAY

Church and State Are Represented at Official Opening of Coast Indian School

Alert Bay, Nov. 5.—W. E. Ditchburn, Indian commissioner for British Columbia; W. M. Halliday, Indian agent for the district, representing the State; and Archdeacon F. C. C. Heathcote of Vancouver, and Rev. C. K. K. Prosser, representing the church, participated in the ceremony which on Saturday marked the official opening of the new Indian residential school here.

Mr. Ditchburn, Indian Commissioner, at the request of Mr. Anfield, principal, raised the school flag during the first of the National Anthem. Mr. Ditchburn unlocked the door and the children and visitors passed into the auditorium.

Archdeacon Laycock read a letter of greeting from Right Rev. C. de V. Schofield, Bishop of Columbia, regretting his inability to be present and praying for God's blessing on the schools. After a short prayer by Archdeacon Laycock, the hymn, "Christ is Made the Sure Foundation," was sung.

The principal then asked Mr. Halliday to act as chairman. In a happy speech he traced the growth of the school from the days of Rev. A. J. Hall, the first missionary, and R. H. Piddick, assistant, by whose joint efforts the first school was built thirty-four years ago. This was only for boys, and Mr. Corker was made principal. He also spoke of the great help received from time to time from the Women's Auxiliary.

Mr. Ditchburn spoke of the growing interest the Dominion Government was showing in Indian education. This year the Government has already spent $475,000 on schools as compared with $1,315 in 1874.

The new building in Alert Bay had cost $225,000. He then formally handed over the keys of the school to Archdeacon Heathcote, official representative of the M.S.C. in British Columbia. Archdeacon Heathcote, on receiving the keys, announced that the school be named: St. Michael's Indian Residential School. The Archdeacon, in his address, said that, as so often happened, the church began a work which the state promised to help; and how magnificently the state had kept its promise was shown by the beautiful building just opened.

SCHOOL DAYS

I've heard many strains that filled me with joy, but none I will say, since the day I was born, has pleased me so much as when a small boy I heard on the farm the old dinner horn; 'Twas a trumpet of tin a yard or so long, and 'twas blown for the boys at noon and at morn; the monotonous strain was piercing and strong, but sweet for all that was the patched old horn.

Needless Pain!

Don't be a martyr to unnecessary pain. Lots of suffering is, indeed, quite needless. Headaches, for example. They come without warning, but one can always be prepared. Aspirin tablets bring prompt relief. Keep a bottle of them at the office. Carry the small tin in your pocket. Then you won't have to hunt a drugstore, or wait till you get home.

And do not think that Aspirin is only good for headaches, sore throats, and colds. Read the proven directions for relieving neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism, and other aches and pains. Remembering, of course, that the quick comfort from these tablets is not a cure; for any continued pain, see a doctor.

Purchase genuine Aspirin. Protect yourself by looking for that name. Always the same. Always safe. Never hurts the heart.

Is a Father's Love for His Children Less Intense Than a Mother's? — Cowardly Plan of An Able-bodied Husband—Should a Boy Know He Has Been Adopted?

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—Every once in a while, you, or someone else, writes something about the mother's heart that years and breaks for the babe that has died, but no one ever seems to think that a father's heart can break for the little one that has gone just as much, and, in some cases, more than the mother's. Three years ago we lost a little boy. At first my wife was prostrated, but with the coming of another child she seems to have got over it, while I grieve more all the time. I never mention it to her or any one else, but often I feel that I cannot carry on, but I know I must for the sake of others who are dependent upon me. But night after night I lie awake and it seems to me that my boy reaches out his little arms from the grave and calls to me and asks me: "Why did you let me die when I so loved to live?" No, it is not only the mother's heart that breaks.

JUST A FATHER.
Answer—I do not know why we glorify mother love more than we do father love, or why we think of the tie between mother and child as being stronger than that between father and child.

Perhaps it is because in infancy the child is more dependent upon the mother than it is upon the father, and because more fathers than mothers desert their children. In divorces it is nearly always the mother who asks for the children's custody. Many men are willing to sacrifice their children in order to marry a flapper, but very few women are willing to give up their children for a lover.

So, taking it by and large, perhaps women, as a class, do love their children more than men, but there are many exceptions to this rule. There are women who have no maternal instinct whatever and whose feeling for their children is that of an animal for its young. They never show their children any tenderness, or affection, and push them out of their way as soon as they can. And there are men who are all father and whose love for their children is the consuming passion of their lives.

It is well for us to exalt mother love and pay our tribute to it, but we should pay equal honor to father love for its devotion is not less beautiful, nor are its sacrifices less costly than those that the mother makes. We celebrate in song and story the self-abnegation of the mother who puts her children's pleasure and happiness before her own; who cradles them in her arms when they are babes; who watches beside their sick beds; whose hands never weary in ministering to them; who denies herself to give to them.

But the sacrifices that the mother makes are not greater than those that the father makes who spends his whole life toiling to support his children; who works through hot summers that his youngsters may be sent off to cool places in the country; who wears shabby clothes that his boys and girls may be as well dressed as their companions; who goes without necessities to give them luxuries; who lends his back and takes on a heavier load to send them off to college and give them a chance in life that he never had himself.

When a child dies our first rush of sympathy goes to the mother, possibly because it is she who makes the greatest sacrifice. It is she who weeps upon our breasts, but if we could see into the heart of the bereaved parent, very often we would know that the one who suffers more is the quiet, grey-faced father who must hide his grief and go on with his daily work because others depend upon him.

"Men do not feel these things as a mother does," say women, "because a man cannot indulge himself in the luxury of telling his sorrow to the world, but in many a father's heart is buried in a little grave, and many an old man still mourns, after half a century, the child he has lost, and sends up the bitter wail: 'Absalom, my son, my Absalom, would God I had died for thee!'"

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a married man with a large family of young children and with simply a perfect wife. Our only trouble in life is a shortage of money, but she never complains. Now, I am not good at getting a job, and if I get one I can't hold it down, and I see but one way out and it is this:

There is an old lady of eighty-six, who has very poor health and can't live long. She is passionately in love with me and has promised me that if I will leave my wife and family to be a companion to her in her old age that she will make over her fortune to me. If I do this I would only be away from my wife for a few short years, at the most, and ever afterward we could live in complete happiness and give the children every advantage. Would you recommend me to do this?

Answer:

This sounds like a scenario for a five-reel thriller rather than a question asked in good faith. It seems impossible that even at 86 a woman should be so senile as to want the companionship of a man on such terms as you say she offers, or that any man could be so pusillanimous enough to really think of selling himself, his wife and his children to save himself from having to work to support his family.

For that's what's the matter with you, Mr. H. You are lazy, and shiftless, and no-account, and lack grit and backbone. That is the one and only explanation of any man's not being able to get a job, or to hold one down after he gets it. The man who is always being thrown out of work is the man who doesn't work, or who works in such a half-hearted fashion that when the incompetency is weeded out he is always among their number.

You seem to think that your wife will welcome you back with open arms when you return from your amorous excursion with the old lady. Don't delude yourself about that. If she has a particle of spirit or backbone in her will have such a blighting contempt for you that she won't let you come within a mile of her. She will see in you only that most loathsome of all human beings, the male parasite, who would rather graft his living off a silly old woman than work for it.

My advice to you is to forget all about this fantastic plan and to roll up your sleeves and go to work and quit dreaming about getting easy money. Anyway, it's ill waiting for dead people's shoes, and the chances are that when the old lady died she would leave her money for a home for Disabled Tom Cates, anyway.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—My husband and I have adopted a child that we adore. I want to leave the place we are living in and go to a distant city where no one will know that this child is not our own, because I am afraid that when the grown-up son one may tell him that he is an adopted child, and that would break my heart. But my husband refuses to go. I feel this is unfair to the child. What shall I do?

UNHAPPY MOTHER.

Answer:

Of course the child will find out he is an adopted child, but no matter where you would go he would still find it out because somebody would bob up who knew it.

Therefore, the sensible thing to do is to tell the child so yourself so the knowledge that you are not his real parents will never come as a shock to him. And if he is the right sort of stuff he will love you all the better for your having given him the care and affection that his own parents might have given him.

No stigma attaches to a child's being an adopted child, and there is no reason for you to run away and hide as if you had something to be ashamed of. Your husband is quite right in refusing to leave his home for any such foolish reason as you put forth.

Lindsley Issues O.K., Says President

Toronto, Nov. 5 (Miller, Court).—Despite the market recession which the various Lindsley stocks, in common with other mining stocks, have been recently subjected, T. Lindsley, president of Ventures Limited and Falconbridge Nickel, and director of Sherritt Gordon and Sudbury Basin Mines, is quoted in The Financial Post as saying that the directors of the company are perfectly satisfied with the position of the different companies at the present time.

have no reason to be worried by the drop in prices, and he can see no reason why they should be induced to sell at a loss at prevailing prices. "Each of our companies has set itself a programme of development that will take some time to work out," he said. "Progress at times may seem to be slow, but we are thoroughly satisfied with the progress we are making in reaching our ultimate objective." It is reported on reliable authority that Ventures has added another operation to its long string. It is an option on the Cadillac Mining and Development Syndicate holdings of 8,000 acres north of Waite Montgomery in Rouyn Camp proper, with a crew of men ready en route to do surface exploration. To-morrow's Horoscope

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1929

The late hours of the day should be fairly fortunate, according to astrologers, which finds that adverse aspects are discernible in the morning. Under this planetary government it is read as lucky for those who seek political rewards or strong affirmations. The sway is fairly auspicious for those who seek work, but they should delay daily effort until after-midday. There is a lucky sign for salesmen who have access to the persons highest in authority. It is wise to go to the top while this configuration continues. Accidents to aviators are supposed to be more likely under this rule of the stars than in usually the case, for recklessness is encouraged.

Warnings are given to guard the thoughts with special care at this time when there may be a tendency to brood over troubles and to encourage rash ideas. Women should be especially careful to cast out from their minds memories of sorrow or wrongs, for the planetary government is supposed to encourage introspection. Divorces will be even more numerous than they have been, astrologers foretell, and many of them will demonstrate men's quest for youth. While women patronize beauty specialists husbands will incline toward friendships with girls who encourage the desire to study the consciousness of age, the acute love-toll. Again astrologers enjoin attention to the health of the lungs and other centres of respiration. Smalpoes may be prevalent in the winter, it is foretold. The moon is in a sign boding for material prosperity and great national progress. Much study of economic problems will be pursued by women's clubs and other organizations, if the stars are rightly read.

Public opinion is to be expressed so strongly against political corruption, that drastic reforms will be assured by national legislation, it is predicted. Persons whose birthdate it is have the energy of progress in the coming year which should bring many changes. Children born on this day probably will be successful in whatever they undertake. Many articles belong to this sign. Ignace Jan Paderewski, famous pianist, was born on this day, 1860. Others who have claimed it as a birthday include Colley Cibber, actor and dramatist, 1671; Sir

George Rowland Beaumont, English painter, 1783; and Nelson W. Aldrich, United States senator, 1841.
